British Break Up Arab Invasion Into Palestine

Principal Danger of Recurring Clashes Seem to Exist in the North —Greek Orthodox Church Attacked—British Await Report of High Commissioner.

Jerusalem, Sept. 3 (AP).—British repressive efforts have so broken up the invasion of Bedouins from Syria into Palestine that only small scattered forces were said today to be making their way across the border for participation in the Arab-Jewish hostilities

Information here was that the British military, cooperating closely with the French government of mandated Syria, had the situation in hand. The French had closed the entire Syrian frontier and were exerting every effort to maintain law and order. The British Transjordanian frontier has been closed since the beginning of the trouble.

British aircraft continued their demonstrations over the invaders, showing the restless nomadic bands of Arabs the power of the British government, which was prepared to strike hard in case further breaches of the peace developed.

Pincipal danger of recurring clashes seemed to exist in the north, with the vicinity of Safed somewhat restless.

The correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported the general situation as comparatively quiet, and signs were accumulating that it was improved. Searches were undertaken by the British authorities, he said, in the Arab villages in the vicinity of Jerusalem and 160 Arabs of Lifka, near Motza, were arrested.

Thirty-five Jews were arrested in Haifa and 17 in Tel Aviv on charges of possessing firearms for defense. The high commissioner, Sir John Chancellor, was said to have refused numerous requests that scores of Jews imprisoned on charges of possession of arms be released or to permit distribution of arms among settlers in colonies in the north.

Greek Church Attacked.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency also reported that the Greek Orthodox Church in the Christian community in Beisan was attacked by Arab Moslems. There were casualties but the exact number was not known. It was said also that a conference of Jewish and Moslem leaders resulted in an agreement which prevented an Arab attack on Tiberias, in Galilee.

Arabs attacked two Jewish colonies in the Tiberias district, but both were repulsed by inhabitants. One attack was on Hippin, colony of orthodox Jews. The other was directed against Mizpah, where the farm of Lord Melchett, British Zionist leader, is located.

A Colonial office official communique gave the following as total casualties up to Saturday: Killed or died from wounds, Moslems, 83; Christians, 4; Jews, 109. Wounded in hospitals: Moslems, 122; Christians, 10; Jews, 183.

Await Report of High Commissioner.

London, Sept. 3 (AP).—In well-informed quarters today it was said the British government was awaiting the report of the high commissioner, Sir John Chancellor, before deciding what form its inquiry into the Palestine disorders should take.

A large representative gathering of Moslems presided over by Sir Zalifour Ali Khan yesterday protested "the Jewish attempt to change the status of the Wailing Wall of Jerusalem."

"The Wailing Wall," Sir Zalifour said, is only a pretext. The real bone of contention is the Balfour declaration, which imposes the will of an insignificant minority over an important majority."

Derby Pilot and Plane Missing

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP).—John T. Wood, veteran pilot and president of the Northwest Airways Company, and Russell Ward, his mechanic, were missing more than 24 hours today after leaving Los Angeles on a second attempt to complete the non-stop derby to Cleveland for $7,500 in prizes offered at the National Air Races.

Wood took off at 4 o'clock (E. S. T.) yesterday morning. Inquiry at all major airports on the route failed to discover any trace of him. He was flying a cabin monoplane capable of a speed of 190 miles an hour.

No word had been received from them today and officials of the races were at a loss to decide where a search should begin.

Only three pilots in the derby got through.

Henry Brown, Cleveland airmail pilot, won first prize of $5,000, landing Sunday in 13 hours and 18 minutes. Lee Schoennair, Los Angeles, completed the flight a week ago in 13 hours, 51 minutes and 10 seconds and was awarded second prize of $2,500.

REGISTRATION LARGE IN CITY SCHOOLS.

Public schools of the city opened today for the season. The first day as usual was taken up in registration and preparatory business before getting down to actual study. Registration was large in the various schools.

Moss Prohibition Administrator in Albany District

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP).—Assistant Secretary Lowman today announced the appointment of W. D. Moss as prohibition administrator for the district of Albany, New York. Moss has been assistant to Prohibition Administrator Campbell in New York city.

Moss succeeds Palmer Canfield, who was transferred after the prohibition commissioner expressed disapproval of his handling of the situation in the Albany district. Canfield was transferred to the legal department and the Albany office has been in charge of an inspector from the headquarters here.

Mr. Moss was formerly prohibition administrator of New Jersey for three years, during which time he attracted considerable attention because of his persistent war upon rum running off the New Jersey coast.

After completing an inventory and turning all records over to the new administrator, Captain Dengler, who has been stationed at Albany for two months, will return to Washington to take up his duties as field supervisor and instructor of agents.

Officials of the Albany office do not expect that there will be any extensive shakeup of the present personnel, although a number of agents who did not pass civil service examinations are scheduled to be dropped with the arrival of the new civil service lists in the near future, according to Lowell R. Smith, assistant administrator in charge of enforcement.

Both Charges Are Withdrawn

Each Driver Claimed the Other Was at Fault and Each Had the Other Arrested—Arrive at Settlement.

Sunday a Dodge sedan of Gabriel Levine of 3273 Parkside Place, Bronx, and a car of Ross L. Miller of Kerhonkson came together on the Kingston-Ellenville road at the James gas station near the Kyserike road intersection. After the accident both drivers claimed the other one was at fault and had each other arrested. The drivers were arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Mortimer H. Block of Accord and P. W. Wells of Stone Ridge, who were summoned to the scene.

The defendants were taken before Justiceof the Peace Fred Simpson on reckless driving charges and Levine asked the case be put over until he could procure counsel. An adjournment was taken until Monday, when Mr. Levine was represented by Daniel Hoffman of this city. Bail in each case was fixed at $50 and provided.

At the adjourned hearing the matter was discussed and resulted in both charges being withdrawn when a settlement was arrived at. Miller was also held on a charge of driving without proper registration papers, but on the adjourned date he produced the papers which he had left at home and that charge was also dismissed.

According to Levine he claimed the accident was caused by Miller, who had stopped at the gas station and when the Levine car which was proceeding toward Ellenville approached he said Miller had pulled out into the highway and turned toward Kyserike road. Lavine claimed he had signaled and in order to avoid an accident had turned his car to the left of the road causing the left of his car to strike the right side of the Miller car.

In the Levine car was Mrs. Levine and several children and friends. They were shaken up but not injured.

SKULL FRACTURED WHEN HE DEFENDED STRAW HAT

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP).—Three self-appointed nitwits decided that last night should be the end of the straw hat season.

They strutted up and down Navy Pier knocking straw hats from unwilling but unresisting heads. They came finally to one young man who fought back.

The three ruffians set upon him. They knocked him to the pavement and pounded him without mercy. His skull was fractured and county hospital internes said he probably would die.

The man was not identified. The men who beat him escaped. Beside the unconscious form of their victim they left his hat, undamaged.

BLAMES BLINDING LIGHTS FOR FATAL AUTO CRASH.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—Harry Pratt, 35, of Syracuse, was killed and two companions, Lawrence Harding, 28, and Kenneth Rapp, 28, also of Syracuse, were slightly injured when their automobile went off the road about four miles south of here today.

Harding, driver of the car, was held in the Oneida county jail pending outcome of an inquest later today. Harding said he was blinded by the lights of an on-coming automobile and drove from the road. Pratt, who was in the rumble seat, received a broken neck and died instantly.

Charges Against 62 Policemen In Los Angeles

Confessed Bootlegger Says He Had to Buy His Own Liquor Back After Raids—Names Police Captain and Four Lieutenants.

Los Angeles, Sept. 3 (AP).—Possible grand jury action was expected here today upon two reports, one by the Federal Prohibition office and another by a confessed bootlegger, naming a large number of Los Angeles policemen as members of a "shakedown ring" exacting tribute from the illicit liquor trade.

The Federal Prohibition office reported that 62 policemen of the Metropolitan area, ranging from captains down, had been named by Federal investigators as members of the ring.

At the same time it was disclosed that Harry D. McDonald, a bootlegger, had made a statement to District Attorney Buron Fitts, implicating 25 policemen in the alleged operations.

McDonald, who declared he was "tired of the continued tribute exacted by the police," was reported to have charged that the officers, instead of turning in the liquor they confiscated in raids, sold it to bootleggers from whom they were receiving "protection money."

District Attorney Fitts indicated he might lay the matter before the county grand jury today. Federal officials said they would take no further action in view of Fitts' inclination to investigate.

McDonald, who was arrested after he had made his statement, declined to furnish bail, saying threats had been telephoned to his wife, and that he preferred to remain in a cell rather than be at liberty. Fitts placed a guard over his house.

In his statement, McDonald named one police captain and four lieutenants as members of a ring which visited him here.

Over glasses of his liquor, McDonald charged they demanded and obtained "protection money" from him. In spite of this protection money, he declared, occasionally his place would be raided, and later the liquor taken as evidence would be resold to him under pressure.

"I had to pay them regular wholesale prices for this confiscated whiskey, just taken from me," McDonald said.

Northwest Fires Worst Since 1910

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 3 (AP).—Forest officials today characterized the fire situation in the northwest as the worst since 1910.

An electrical storm which hurtled over the entire area during the week end started new blazes, bringing the situation in Montana, Central Idaho and Eastern Washington to the most critical point this season.

Major fires were sweeping through mercantile timber in the Selway, Pend D'Orielle, Nez Perce, Clearwater and Kooskia forests in Idaho, the Blackfoot, Missoula and Butte forests in Montana and the Colville region and Kaniksu forest of Washington.

Reports from the scores of fronts indicated several hundred thousand acres had been burned.

In the central Idaho region, where the Bald Mountain and Old Man Creek fires have swept nearly 50,000 acres, fighters tore a leaf from the book of the army and were carrying their rations on their backs as they fought, because of the isolation of the region.

A new element of tragedy was injected into the situation with reports of fighters that thousands of game animals, including bear, moose, deer, elk and mountain goats, which make their homes in the timber were fleeing before the flames. Hundreds of these have fallen victims, and their charred carcasses were scattered amoung charred trunks that were once evergreen trees.

Two Reckless Driving Cases

John J. Dunford of New York city and George Mayes of 35 Tietjen avenue, this city, who arrested each other on charges of reckless driving as a result of a collision between their cars Sunday on the Boulevard, appeared in police court today, and both cases were set down for a hearing on September 10.

John Rhinehart of Gross street, arrested on a charge of reckless driving by Officer Thiel of the West Shore police force, entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was set down for Thursday. Rhinehart is charged with driving his truck so fast on Broadway that he failed to stop and drove through both gates of the West Shore crossing on Broadway early Monday morning.

Bomb Restaurant and Mission.

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP).—A restaurant and a gospel mission were damaged by a bomb explosion early today. The black powder "pineapple" exploded in the front doorway of a restaurant in West Madison street, the force of the explosion shattering the plate glass window in the gospel mission across the street. Restaurant rivalry prompted the bombing, police said. The damage was $500, $25.

Hoover Back In Washington With New Job

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP).—President Hoover was back in Washington today from a week-end vacation at his Blue Ridge Mountain fishing lodge with a new job—that of chairman of a national committee which is to have a part in providing educational facilities for the youthful mountaineers in the neighborhood of his camp.

The chief executive's attention was called forcibly to the prevailing illiteracy of the mountain people a few weeks ago when Ray Burraker, a ragged urchin of the nearby slopes, paid him an unannounced visit, presented him with an opossum and engaged him in conversation.

On Sunday, Mr. Hoover called the lad's father, known throughout the mountains as "Pa Burraker", to the camp and discussed the situation at length with the rugged mountaineer. A plan was formulated which Mr. Hoover hopes may improve conditions.

The President decided personally to head a national committee to raise funds for the erection of a little schoolhouse while Burraker agreed to solicit the support of his neighbors in requesting the Virginia state authorities to provide a teacher.

Five families make their homes in the region adjacent to the camp, with approximately twenty children of school age who have never been given any educational opportunities. It is estimated that approximately $1,200 will be needed to build the school house and get the project started.

Mr. Hoover returned to the White House last night in order to preside at today's cabinet meeting. Some members of his party, including his son, Allan, elected to remain at the fishing lodge until today.

Woman Lost In Woods Shoots Self

Cascade, Idaho, Sept. 3 (AP).—Mrs. Louise Higgins, 23, wife of a forest ranger, who shot herself in despair after being lost in the wild country near the head of the Salmon river for four days, was on her way back to civilization today on a stretcher. Physicians said she probably would recover.

Mrs. Higgins last Thursday left her husband on a forest trail and started on horseback for a ranger cabin fifteen miles distant. Her horse stumbled and fell over an embankment. Mrs. Higgins leaped to safety and the horse ran away, leaving her with only a small rifle and two sandwiches to sustain her on the trip.

Starting for the headwaters of the river she found herself in thick underbrush. Abandoning hope that she would be found, she turned the gun on herself and shot twice.

When the husband reached the cabin and found that his wife had not yet arrived, a search was started. More than fifty men combed the area. She was found Sunday lying partly in a mountain stream, too weak to eat.

Dr. R. C. Ward of Cascade made an all night horseback ride over 60 miles of mountain trail to render medical aid. She was carried over 17 miles of rough trail on a stretcher yesterday to White Creek Ranger station. Attendants said it would take three more days to bring Mrs. Higgins to a hospital here.

Graf Zeppelin Nearing Home

(By The Associated Press.)

Homeward bound, the Graf Zeppelin was this morning presumably nearing Bordeaux over the Bay of Biscay on a new route to Friedrichshafen.

The big dirigible hoping to break her round-the-world record from Lakehurst to Lakehurst by still better time from Friedrichshafen to Friedrichshafen, was then roughly 1,300 miles from her home hangar. At a speed of 70 miles an hour, she would need a little more than 18 hours to cover this distance and this would bring her to Friedrichshafen about 9 p. m., E. S. T.

To break her record Atlanttic crossing, however, she must have reached Friedrichshafen by before 2:42 p. m., E. S. T.

Is she took the Bordeaux route, it would be the first time weather conditions permitted her to follow that course, which has several times been announced for her.

An alternative and longer course across Spain and Portugal to Barcelona and up the Rhone Valley was available for Captain Ernst Lehmann, in command in place of Captain Hugo Eckener.

From Bordeaux to Friedrichshafen is approximately 590 miles, or less than seven hours flying time. At 3 a. m., E. S. T., the Graf was roughly 800 miles from Bordeaux or a little more than eleven hours flying time.

Cases In Police Court.

John Fields of Poughkeepsie, arrested here for public intoxication, was fined $5 this morning by Judge Shufeldt. Michael Tierney of 10 Walnut street, arrested on complaint of his wife who charged he struck her, pleaded guilty and was fined

Brock, Senator From Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 3 (AP).—Tennessee today had a new United States Senator and also a candidate in the field for his successor for the six-year term beginning in March, 1931.

Hardly was the ink dry on Governor Henry H. Horton's commission to William E. Brock, Chattanooga candy manufacturer, as the Democratic successor to the late Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, before Representative Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic national committee from 1921 to 1924 and Tennessee's "favorite son" at the Houston convention last year, announced he would seek the nomination for the next full term.

Mr. Brock will serve until the election of 1930 under the governor's appointment.

"I did not seek the appointment to the senatorial short term," Mr. Hull's announcement said. "I shall seek the full term of six years from the Democratic rank and file of Tennessee." He said "such claims as I may have will be based upon my record of legislative and party service."

One of the aims set out by Mr. Hull was "to revitalize the national Democratic party and unite its rank and file wholeheartedly behind a broad constructive program of fundamental policies, calculated to deal adequately with every essential phase of our national life."

Two Boys Found With Stolen Car

George Williams and George McPhail Held at Cat-kill for Local Police When Found With Stolen Truck of William Buster of This City.

Following the call of William Buster, a negro of Chambers street, at police headquarters to report that his truck had been stolen from Mill street Labor Day morning a general alarm was sent out which resulted later in the day in the police at Catskill arresting George Williams of 136 Newkirk avenue and George McPhail of 50 Meadow street who were found in possession of the stolen truck. In the truck were also found two bicycles which it is said were stolen from Kenneth Wells of 60 Meadow street and Samuel Wood of 48 Meadow street.

The two boys, who were each 16 years old, were brought back to Kingston with the truck and bicycles and will be arraigned later today in police court before Judge Shufeldt.

R. R. Bridge On Fire.

The fire department was called out Monday afternoon when some planking in the Kister & Delaware railroad bridge on Albany avenue caught fire. The damage was slight.

Traffic Heavy Over Labor Day; Few Accidents

Although traffic was exceptionally heavy over Labor Day there were few serious accidents in this locality. The fact that traffic was heavy and cars were compelled to keep in line probably was responsible for the freedom of accidents. There were a number of slight accidents in which the principal damage was bent fenders.

South of Kingston traffic was heavy. Many people crossed the Kingston-Rhinebeck ferry and took advantage of the good road on the east shore of the river. There was a considerable delay in crossing the ferry although 2 boats were kept running. At times the line of waiting cars extended from the ferry through to West Strand and Canal street and up Broadway but the line was moved with fair speed. Those who took the 9-W route to Highland were kept in line due to construction signs on that highway where the contractors are engaged in work. Although there was no actual tearing up of the road considerable work was in progress on preliminary work and traffic moved fairly slow and kept in line better than usual. Work will now be taken up in earnest on the highway.

On the Albany road there was extremely heavy traffic from the Adirondacks but accidents were few. The Catskills also received a fair proportion of traffic. Through Kingston traffic was kept moving by special traffic officers stationed at points of vantage. In some instances the usual lights were extinguished and traffic officers directed traffic during the height of the rush.

Restaurants and hotels report a heavy week-end business.

Outline Changes In Tariff Bill

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP).—Detailed explanations of the changes made in the House Tariff Bill by Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee were set forth in a tentative report issued for publication today by the committee majority.

Filling eighty printed pages, the document advocated the proposed substitution of domestic for foreign values in the computation of ad valorem duties, asserted that the measure would raise the level of protection on agricultural commodities by eleven per cent and, going through the bill by individual schedules, gave the committee majority's reasons for the rates agreed upon.

The elimination of all international difficulties in the administration of the tariff law was predicted as a result of adopting the proposed method of levying ad valorem duties. All necessary investigations, the report said, would be made within the United States, thus avoiding inquiries in other countries with their difficulties and occasional international disagreements. In addition, it was asserted that through the new method present inequalities resulting from differing production costs in various nations would be avoided.

Domestic value was defined as the equivalent of United States value under the present tariff law—the freely offered wholesale price of the imported or similar merchandise in American markets—except that there would be no deductions for transportation costs, commissions and other expenses.

Going on to agricultural commodities, the report said that changes in this schedule, as compared with the House bill, were the result of additional evidence adduced at subcommittee hearings and consist principally of "adjustments." Substantially, the report added, the committee had agreed to "the considerable increases in rates on agricultural products provided by the House bill "entailing an estimated increase of $25,000,000 in revenue from this schedule and raising the percentage of protection from 23, under the present law, to 34 under the proposed legislation.

The most important change in the sugar schedules was asserted to be that reducing the rate on Cuban sugar from 2.40 cents per pound figure proposed by the house to 2.20 cents.

FORD TURNS OVER PASSENGERS INJURED.

A Ford sedan occupied by five people turned over on the Kingston-Woodstock road Monday but none of the occupants were seriously injured. The car went off the road into the ditch and after turning over two or three times was completely wrecked. William Weisburg of the Bronx was driving. He and three children were slightly injured as was Morris Koff another passenger. At the Kingston Hospital their injuries were treated and they left for home.

THE RED LIGHT PASSERS CLUB FORFEIT $5 EACH

Seven members of the Red Light Passers Association forfeited $5 each in police court today when they failed to appear to answer to the charge of passing traffic signals set against them. The seven members of the association were: Edward Sabino of New York; William Gurian of New York; Arthur Henry of New York; Nicholas Marucci of New York; Frank J. Falk of Brooklyn; William P. Oese of Maplewood, N. J.; and Hans Sorensen of Brooklyn.

Ulster County Fruit Wins Prize At State Fair

Many Fruit Growers Contribute to Fine Show—Fine Demonstration of Ulster County Fruit—Names of Contributors.

The Ulster County Farm Bureau, with the [illegible] of the fruit growers in the county, put on an exceptionally fine fruit exhibit at the New York State Fair at Syracuse last week. The committee in charge consisted of Albert Kurdt, Farm Bureau manager; Walter Marggraf, manager of the Clintondale Fruit Growers Cooperative; Peter J. McManus and Kenneth Tabor of Milton. This committee was ably assisted by Ralph Harcourt, J. Wells Weaver, Walter Weaver, Henry DuBois, W. S. Salisbury, assistant Farm Bureau manager, Melford Hurd and A. J. Schaefer.

It was decided to put on this exhibit only a short time before the fair. The committee met and drew up tentative plans. The picking and collecting of fruit was started at once by Mr. Salisbury and Mr. Kurdt. The fruit was gathered at Clintondale where cold storage and packing facilities are conveniently available. All the fruit was packed Thursday and Friday nights and made ready for shipment on Saturday.

There was no need for sleeping quarters the Saturday night before the fair. The truck arrived at the fair grounds about 2:30 a. m., Sunday. The committee went to work at once getting the display in order and worked continuously until after midnight Sunday. Following a short rest, work was again started early Monday morning. Everything was in readiness for the spectators at 9 o'clock.

A large fern formed the center of the exhibit. This was surrounded by 250 plates of fruit attractively arranged. The barrels, bushels and boxes of fruit were arranged about the table. The exhibit was distinctly ahead of the others in its class in artistic display, commercial value, educational features and number of varieties, but the judges gave it second place because the Seneca county exhibit had slightly better quality in a few commercial varieties, quality carrying the highest scoring value.

The statistics regarding the varieties of fruit is interesting. The display contained 87 varieties of apples, 52 varieties of grapes, 16 varieties of pears, 14 plums, 13 peaches, 4 crabapples, 4 quinces, 2 currants, 1 of strawberries and 1 variety of cherries. These make a total of 193 different varieties, all of which are grown in Ulster county.

Brief Summary.

The numerous contributors of fruit deserve much credit. A brief summary is as follows:

"Barrels of apples were furnished by Melvin Churchwell of Ulster Park; George Van Wyck, Wallkill; C. R. Tabor, Milton; A. E. Jansen, New Paltz; J. Wells Weaver, Clintondale; Joseph Deyo, Gardiner; W. Y. & H. T. Velie, Marlborough; Frank Schoonmaker, Modena; Ralph P. Harcourt, Clintondale; Ray Elmendorf, Kingston, and Conway Brothers of Marlborough. Bushels of apples were supplied by Walter Clarke, A. J. Schaefer, Myron Hazen, Ray Elmendorf, Frank Gaffney, E. M. Clarke, Jerome Pratt, W. M. Walker, Philip Wilklow, W. Y. & H. T. Velie, Ralph Harcourt, Leighton Craft, J. H. Clarke, Fred Vail, J. Wells Weaver and Ray Elmendorf."

Packages of pears were supplied by A. J. Schaefer and C. J. Hepworth. Peaches in larger packages by S. L. Quimby, Walter Clarke, and Melford Hurd. Mr. Hurd together with J. Wells Weaver supplied most of the grapes, while Mr. Hurd and Ralph Harcourt furnished the packages of plums.

Those Who Helped.

In addition to the above contributors of packages of fruit the following helped materially in the success of the show. D. G. Crowell of Wallkill supplied thirty-five varieties of apples. Other contributors of various kinds of fruits were: J. H. Geenen, C. C. DuMond, Bert Sears, J. R. Clarke, Seymour Terwilliger, J. A. Smith, Costa Bros., Westervelt Clarke, Alfred Bedell, C. J. Hepworth, W. H. Walker, L. M. Thatcher, Charles Eiffert, John Castellano, Eli DuBois, Frank Elliott, J. Wells Weaver, Melford Hurd, Ralph Harcourt and A. J. Schaefer.

All fruit growers and residents of Ulster County feel proud of the display made at Syracuse. Many favorable comments were made by the spectators, and numerous inquiries were answered as to the source of such excellent fruit.

HAD A HARD HOLIDAY, SO HE SENT FOR HIS CAR.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 3 (AP).—The distinguished looking but dishevelled gentleman leaning against the lamp post at Dewey and Foster avenues was tired: very. It had been a holiday, and you know how holidays are this hot weather.

He dragged himself to a police call box, the door of which was conveniently open.

"Send my car right over," he said, listlessly. "I'll wait."

They sent over the car with the lengthwise seats and the screened windows. The man, too tired even to say who he was, climbed wearily aboard.

"Drive right home," he said. When he awoke this morning, expecting to be at home, he wasn't.

Towns' Names on Roofs Guide Distance Flyers

Washington.—Remarkable progress in the movement to have name signs painted on the roofs of prominent buildings of towns throughout the country was reported by W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general in charge of air mail, on his return from an inspection trip over the air mail lines.

The campaign was started by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics and postmasters have been enlisted to further the movement. Mr. Glover said he was surprised with the results already accomplished.

He said the people in the West were more interested in the air mail than those in the East.

At Two Years of Age

Speaking in terms of averages, a child two years of age is half as tall as he will be when he reaches maturity. Of course, this does not necessarily hold true in particular cases. Height depends a great deal on whether a child receives proper food and care during the growing period.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Diving Helmet Helps Boy Find Golf Balls

Dallas, Texas.—A home-made diving headgear, developed by the trial and error method from a tin bucket, is the "get rich quick" apparatus of Clarence Chandler, fifteen, Dallas school youth.

Chandler has discovered he can lower himself to a depth of 50 feet in water with the bucket on his head, pick up enough golf balls in an hour to keep him rich for a week, and when golf lakes are drained of balls, move on to other lakes where sunken motor boats and outboard racers can be brought to the surface.

The youth's first idea for his invention came from his mother's kitchen where he saw her submerge glasses, bottom-up, into rinsing pans without the glasses filling with water.

FIND TRACE OF CULTURED RACE

Discoveries in Nevada Confirm Piute Legend of Lost People.

Reno, Nev.—Legends of the Piute Indians that the Nevada desert was peopled by a strange and wise race thousands of years ago have been partly confirmed by archeological discoveries in a cave in the Humboldt mountains, 22 miles from the town of Lovelock.

Explorers have found thousands of articles left by the forgotten people, including skillfully-woven baskets, flint knives, hatchets and arrowheads, fur blankets and whistles made from the bones of deer. Among the most beautiful and interesting objects found were several decoy ducks, fashioned with amazing artistry from feathers and tule.

High State of Culture.

Things found in the cave indicate the ancient people had attained a high state of culture and that their knowledge of basket weaving antedated the Pueblo civilization by many hundred years. Several mummified skeletons, usually buried with their possessions and wrapped in nets, were found.

Numerous blankets, woven from the skins of meadow mice, were uncovered, together with bows and arrows and other weapons of war and the chase. Most of the relics have been removed to the museum of anthropology at the University of California, but prospectors and desert wanderers tell of similar caves in the isolated Humboldt mountains that show evidence of being the last refuge of the mysterious race.

Many of these caves are marked by drawings, crude pictures and strange characters on surrounding cliffs and canyon walls. All the articles found in the great cave were in an excellent state of preservation, sealed from the ravages of time by the dry climate and protecting dust of the desert.

Destroyed by Neighbors.

The Piutes for generations have handed down the legend of a red-haired people that dominated the desert region in the long ago, when the land was dotted by broad lakes, pleasant rivers and rich verdure. The legend says these people drew upon themselves the wrath of neighboring Indian tribes by raiding their lodges and carrying their young women into captivity.

Some of the most beautiful of the Indian girls, the legend goes, were destined to become the wives of the red-haired warriors and others to be slaves to the women of the strange people.

After many great battles the red-headed people were driven into the caves of the Humboldt range, and when they refused to surrender they were exterminated by fire.

Driftwood in Gotham Harbor Costly Snags

New York.—Driftwood and other obstacles in New York harbor imposes a heavy financial penalty on boat owners, according to a report by Edwin B. Lapham, vice president of the Waterway league of America. In the first five months of the year, the report said, members of the New York towboat exchange paid out $40,000 for new propellers and the cost of fitting them after old ones had been damaged by the drifting debris. Lapham pointed out that some mishaps have been so serious that boats have been required to go to drydock, owners thus losing also the services of the vessels.

Petrified Snakes' Den Found in Shale Bank

Cumberland, Md.—The uncovering of unusual rock formations representing the petrification of a snake-like reptile while excavating in a shale bank for a garage in the rear of the property of A. F. Lear caused such interest that Mayor Thomas W. Koon telegraphed the Smithsonian institution of the discovery and was advised that a fossil expert would be sent here.

It would appear that a den of petrified snakes has been uncovered. One formation, which, when restored as far as possible, resembles a fossilized python about twelve feet long.

Zeliff to Open Music Studio

Kendall Zeliff of this city has opened a violin studio in the Opera House building, 322 Fair street. Mr. Zeliff is well known in music circles throughout the city having begun the study of the violin at an early age and played in the public and high school orchestras of this city until entering in competition with violinists from several states, the full scholarship in violin at the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, Ithaca, N. Y., in 1926.

During the ordinary four year college course at the conservatory, which he completed in three years, Mr. Zeliff gave numerous violin recitals, appeared as church soloist on various occasions in Plainfield, N. J., Syracuse and Ithaca. In 1927 he made a successful appearance in conjunction with Harold Osbourne Smith, organist of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y.

In 1928 for high scholarship in his academic work, Mr. Zeliff was elected to the Honorary Society of the college and was awarded the silver medal the past spring in the annual violin medal contest open to juniors and seniors of the school. He played second rack, first violin section, in the conservatory symphony orchestra.

Mr. Zeliff played the well-known violin concerto, Rondo Capriccioso, by Saint-Saens in the Kingston High School auditorium at fourteen years of age. He is a pupil of Pierre Henrotte, concert master of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, W. Grant Egbert, founder of the Ithaca Conservatory, Stefan Sopkin and Adolph Peck formerly of the Berne Conservatory at Berne, Switzerland.

Wolf Island, near Darien, Ga., a lighthouse site for 100 years, may become a refuge for coastal birds.

Battery Quality has a SAFETY POINT

The lower the price of a battery, the lower its quality is apt to be. Below the safety point you risk expense and disappointment. A single towing charge, for example, might eat up more than you saved on a too low-priced battery.

Buy known quality, and be money ahead in the end. You'll find it in a Willard. Dependably constructed, of selected materials, and rated at the correct electrical size, a Willard gives you true value at the safety point of fair price and high quality.

LIVES LOST WHEN TYPHOON WRECKS STEAMER.

Manila, P. I., Sept. 3 (AP).—The steamer Mayon, owned by the Manila Railroad, was reported to have foundered in a typhoon yesterday afternoon off the Pasacao Ragay Gulf. Of the thirty-seven passengers aboard the steamer, only nine were reported to have been saved.

The provinces of Tayabas, Bulacan and Pamanga, all on the Island of Luzon, apparently bore the brunt of the typhoon but no reports from these areas were available.

The typhoon missed the main part of Manila, passing just north of the city. That vicinity experienced strong wind and rain throughout the day, reaching a maximum velocity of 70 miles an hour early this afternoon.

Damage was slight, however. A few frail nipa (palm thatched) houses were blown down and fallen trees interrupted tramway service in some places. The downpour covered some of the lower sections of the city with water.

FAMOUS NEUROLOGIST TO TALK AT WOODSTOCK

Intense interest is expressed in Dr. Rosett's talk Wednesday for the benefit of the Woodstock Library. This will be held at 4 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Neilson T. Parker. It is the final of a series of six that have proved delightful. Many people have come a long distance to hear the distinguished men who have generously given these talks, realizing that the opportunity was a rare one.

No one is better qualified than Dr. Rosett to speak on the significance of the central nervous system. Dr. Rosett has brought the results of his extensive researches into original dissections of the human brain to bear on certain aspects of everyday behavior in a way that throws fresh light on the normal processes of thought and action.

Dr. Rosett is a most distinguished practicing neurologist in New York city and spends much time at the clinics of Columbia University, with which he is connected. Before coming to New York he was a practicing physician in Baltimore specializing in children. In addition to his practice, work at the Medical Center and attending neurological conferences, he is writing a book on "The Mechanism of the Brain," which will be published shortly.

Dr. Rosett is a Russian but has been many years in this country. During the war, he was sent to Russia with a group of others to study and report on various conditions there. He had opportunities for special observations one of which was concerned with the famous "Death Train," which, filled with prisoners, was sent from station to station—no one daring to take the responsibility of opening it until Dr. Rosett assumed it as a part of his office and mission.

A great lover of nature, like his friend, John Kingsbury, he has made a collection of mushrooms which he has cast completely in metal. Several sets of these have been secured for museums.

AMERICANS TO BUILD $40,000,000 RUSSIAN CITY

Nishni-Novgorod, U. S. S. R., Sept. 3 (AP).—American engineering skill, ingenuity and energy has been called into play by Soviet Russia in the building of a great new model industrial city just north of here between the Volga and the Oka rivers.

In competition with engineers of six European countries the Austin Company of Cleveland, Ohio, has been awarded a contract by the Soviet government to construct a city on mbodern American lines.

It may be named Austingrad as a compliment to its American builders. The principal product of the center will be Ford automobile and motor trucks. Ultimately 500,000 automobiles annually will be produced there.

Involving the expenditure of $40,000,000 by the Russian government this is the largest contract of its kind given by the Soviet authorities since they gained power twelve years ago and the new city will contain the largest automobile plant in Europe.

BOOMING BUTLER FOR PENNSYLVANIA GOVERNOR

Philadelphia, Sept. 3 (AP)The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin says a movement has been started to boom Major General Smedley D. Butler, former director of public safety of Philadelphia and now commandant of the marine corps base at Quantico, Va., for governor of Pennsylvania.

The movement is said to have developed at the recent American Legion state convention at Scranton. General Butler attended the convention and made a speech with the result that some members got together and suggested a chain of "Butler for Governor" clubs.

"LAND OF THE SOVIETS" PREPARE FOR PACIFIC TRIP.

Moscow, Sept. 3 (AP).—The all-Russian airplane land of the Soviets, piloted by the Russian Ace Shestakov on his second effort to fly from Moscow to New York landed today at Khabarofsk, Eastern Siberia, completing the first stage of its flight across an ocean and three continents.

At Khabarovsk mechanics got busy putting floats on the land plane for the crossing of the Pacific. Shestakov and his three comrades will fly by the way of Nikolayevsk-on-Amur, Petropavlovsk in Kamchatka, and the Aleutian Islands to Alaska.

Crippled War Veteran Murdered.

Farrell, Pa., Sept. 3 (AP).—The body of Joseph Paladino, 35, crippled World War veteran, was found with two wounds in the back of the head and a rope twisted about the neck in the rear of a vacant lot here early today. Paladino apparently had been struck in the head with a blunt weapon and then strangled. His body had been dragged approximately 60 feet across the lot. A sum of money in his pocket was not touched.

Was "Mad" So Fatal Fire.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 3 (AP).—Rosebud Ashton, 15-year-old negro orphan, today confessed, police and fire authorities said, to setting fire to the industrial settlement home here Sunday. Eight negro orphans, the oldest 6, perished in the fire. The girl told officers she was "mad because they whipped me." Rosbud was one of the rescuers of the seventy-two orphans who escaped uninjured from the home.

Golden Rods Win.

The New York Golden Rods won from the Brigham A. C. by a score of 16 to 5 Labor Day. The Brigham team played a good brand of baseball but the hard hitting colored team was too much for them. Jeff Gordon and Leo Archer made up the battery for the Golden Rods.

Variety of Colors Featured for New Seasons by the Paris Makers.

The important fabric for the coming season is velvet, so important that one of the largest silk manufacturers of Lyons is showing it in over 200 tones, says a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York World.

Blanchini is also offering panne, a material which to the lay mind is velvet but technically is not velvet. The surface thread is long, heavily pressed and the surface brilliant. It is featured in black, also with colored and tinsel figures on a brilliant background. There is a return of tinsel patterns, sometimes on panne, and again on a delightful mixture of velvet traceries on a tulle foundation with tinsel figures. These tinsel patterns are unlike the old lames and deserve a new name, tinsel.

This house is presenting much brocaded taffetas and moires, and as these have been largely ordered by certain

Wrap of Dull Gray Velvet Trimmed with Platinum Fox.

Paris couturieres, we shall certainly see in the coming winter a new version of the "style" evening frock.

The winter silks and velvets show many green tones, a blue more brilliant than navy blue and a lavender blue, and many light brown shades that blend well together, also many red tones.

Turbans of velvet, which look precisely like the colorful head-dress of a gypsy, are chosen by smart young things to wear with sports coats of matching velveteen.

Blonde and Red Fox in Autumn Fashion Picture

A huge pile of gorgeous red fox from Alaska recently arrived at a metropolitan furrier's place indicates that this beautifully colored fur will again be prominent in the mode, observes a fashion writer in the Cleveland News.

Numerous light-colored ensembles seen at fashionable lunching places consisted of a cloth coat trimmed with either blonde or red fox and a dress of the same color as the coat.

Jade green was chosen for a coat trimmed with red fox, as one instance of this favoritism for the fur, and the coat was worn with a jade green felt skullcap. Another smartly garbed maid appeared in bright blue coat with trimming of blonde fox. This same tint of fox was stunning when used with a very light green cloth coat, the hat of this costume matching the fur rather than the shade of green.

Spun Silk May Afford Year Round Material

A new kind of silk, called "spun silk," is being put forward which may simplify the problem of wearing silks the year round. It has been tested by a research committee of the silk association and found to behave unusually well in laundering, retaining both its color and its shape without requiring especially expert care. It is now to be seen with gay printed designs, in dainty pastels or woven as rough shantungs, pongees or soft plains.

The spun silk weaves, while soft and pliable, have a certain ruggedness of surface, it is explained, and hold their lines and subdued lustre.

Capelets Are Liked as Covering for Bare Arms

The capelet is a becoming style. Especially becoming when, very often, one longs for a bit of covering for bare arms.

The frock with a capelet, of course, is sleeveless—but the cape covers the bare arms, in a most alluring and attractive fashion.

Sometimes the cape goes all across the back and meets at the center front. Sometimes it is in the back only. Sometimes it goes over each arm, but not across back or front.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—Receipts of New York state Big Boston lettuce were moderate today. Trading was a trifle more active and values averaged higher, especially on fancy. Crates of 24 heads wholesaled mainly at 50c-75c. Western Iceberg lettuce was more plentiful. Offerings varied greatly in quality. Crates of about 48 heads peddled out as high as $5.50 and as low as $1.50.

Increased arrivals of cauliflower from Colorado sharply competed against shipments from the Catskill Mountains, and prices declined. The best consignments from Colorado sold at chiefly $2.00, occasionally at $2.25. Most of the best Catskill Mountain stock realized $3.00-$3.50.

The market on upstate New York celery was about steady. Supplies were moderate and the demand fair. Two thirds crates of stock in the rough peddled out at $2.00-$2.25 for the best, rarely any higher, and $1.50-$1.75 on poorer.

Supplies of Western New York carrots were fairly liberal. The demand was poor and the market ruled decidedly weak. The top price obtained on the downtown piers for unwashed carrots was 75 cents a bushel. Washed stock peddled out at $1.00-$1.15.

Arrivals of cucumbers from New York upstate were liberal. Trading was moderate and prices averaged a shade higher on attractive stock. Sales on fancy packed cucumbers in bushel baskets were made at $1.25-$2.25, chiefly $1.50-$1.75. Dills ranged from $1.50-$2.75, principally $2.00-$2.25 and pickles from $2.25-$3.00 mostly $2.50-$2.75.

Price changes on state Bartlett and Clapps Favorite pears were unimportant. Fancy large fruit met a ready sale in a steady market. Number 1 stock jobbed out at $2.50-$3.25, mostly $2.75-$3.00. Seckel pears ranged from $2.50-$4.00.

Supplies of tomatoes were generous again today. The market ruled entirely in the buyer's favor. Carriers of six 4-quart baskets of ripe stock from the Hudson Valley wholesaled at $1.00-$2.00. Some inferior old lower. Green tomatoes from the western part of the state brought $1.00-$1.50.

After Monkey Burglar.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—A monkey trained as a burglar was sought by police today as the looter of wealthy homes in Westchester county. The theory was advanced because of the absence of finger prints and the lack of noise. Five homes in Mount Vernon were entered yesterday but only $25 taken, mostly in pennies and dimes. Entrance in each case was made by removing window screens on the lower floors, believed the work of the monkey's master. Chief of Police George G. Atwell has offered a reward of $50 and five days' vacation to the policeman who captures the burglar.

TWO WOMEN PASSENGERS BURNED TO DEATH

Westerly, R. I., Sept. 3 (AP).—Arthur Manning, a pilot, was the sole survivor of a holiday airplane accident in which his two women passengers were burned to death.

Mrs. Marie A. Hunter, 31, of Westfield, Mass., and Miss Marie Day, 20, of West Springfield, Mass., were the victims.

Manning, with the two women passengers, took off from the flying field at Misquamicut, a nearby shore resort, yesterday. The plane had risen but a short distance when the motor began to miss. Manning turned and attempted a landing. One wing of the plane struck the ground, throwing him clear.

The plane righted itself and rolled along the field before it stopped and burst into flames. Although injured, Manning rose from where he had been thrown and ran toward the plane. He tripped and fell again on the way. When he reached the machine, it was a mass of flames and he was unable to help the women strapped in the seats.

PART TIME SCHOOL BEGINS THIS WEEK.

Part time school work will begin this week and all pupils who have not registered today must register Wednesday or Friday between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m.

All boys and girls who have to make up time and those who have not passed their 17th birthday and are not in regular attendance in day school must attend part time school. Employers should pay particular attention to see that boys and girls within the age limit of the school law have their working papers completed and returned to them and receipt for their attendance in part time school.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN AN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION.

Two women, Mrs. McVey of West New York and Mrs. John O'Dem of Maspeth, L. I., were shocked and bruised on Monday afternoon when the car they were riding in was struck in the rear by another car. According to the police report the women were riding in a car driven by Ethel Hill of Woodcliff, N. J., on Foxhall avenue. The Hill car had stopped to avoid hitting a car ahead of it that had stopped and was struck in the rear by a car driven by Charles Beckert of Brooklyn.

Charged With Theft of Parachute.

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—Two Nassau county detectives left in an airplane today for Troy, N. Y., to bring back Alexander Nelson, a parachute jumper who is charged with having stolen a $300 parachute from Roosevelt Field. Nelson used to do exhibition parachute jumping at Roosevelt Field. Recently officials at Roosevelt Field missed a $300 parachute. The parachute was finally located at Troy Air Field and Nelson was arrested, charged with having used it at Troy for exhibition jumps.

Jews to Hold Mass Meeting

In response to a nation-wide emergency appeal for aid and relief to the Jews in Palestine who are suffering because of the recent Arab uprising there, the Jewish Community of Kingston is calling a mass meeting to be held Wednesday evening, September 4, at 8:30 at the Jewish Community Center.

At this meeting prominent local speakers will explain the situation as it exists in Palestine at the present moment, and will portray even more vividly than has been done by press reports, the serious condition in which the Jewish people and Jewish institutions find themselves at the present time. It is requested that this meeting be well attended.

DETROIT WOMAN MAKES GRUESOME DISCOVERY

Morris, Ill., Sept. 3 (AP).—Police knew they had a murder mystery confronting them today, but they frankly agreed they had no idea how the killing had been done.

The body of a woman about 50 years old, found in a burlap sack beside a main travelled highway yesterday, bore no sign of violence. The circumstances, however, all pointed to foul play.

A post mortem today was to seek the cause of death. Traces of gas and poison were particularly looked for.

Mrs. Joseph Hunt, of Detroit, discovered the body when her curiosity led her to push a large rock from the top of the sack and to open it. She fainted and her husband, who was repairing their automobile nearby, notified the sheriff's office.

DECLINED TO BUILD AGAINST UNITED STATES

Geneva, Sept. 3 (AP).—The British government "declined absolutely to build against the United States," declared Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in his disarmament speech before the League of Nations assembly today. "That is not only the word of a labor government. I think I can say it is that of a conservative government."

MacDonald announced that the Anglo-American naval agreement probably would contain twenty points. "Only three of these points are outstanding," he said.

The labor leader expressed belief the agreement would be completed before the adjournment of the League assembly.

Fatal Accident Near Syracuse.

Syracuse, Sept. 3 (AP).—Mrs. Daisy Perkins, wife of Sergeant Fred Perkins, an infantryman stationed at the Madison Barracks, was killed and her husband was seriously injured when their automobile crashed into a tree near Cicero today. Corporals Willard R. Stoop and Neil Donnelly, other occupants of the machine, were only slightly injured. The wrecked car rolled 300 feet before striking the tree.

Edison Recovers From Pneumonia

West Orange, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP).—Thomas A. Edison, famous inventor, was recovering today from an attack of pneumonia.

A bulletin issued yesterday by his physician, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, was the first intimation that the electrical wizard was suffering from anything more serious than a severe cold.

The bulletin said because of his natural vigor and power of resistance, Mr. Edison, despite his 82 years, had been able to overcome the infection and now was out of danger and in a convalescent stage. He should not resume work for two or three weeks, the bulletin said.

Mr. Edison contracted a severe cold August 11. Despite this he continued work in his laboratory for two days. Then pneumonia set in.

DEAN MOON OF SYRACUSE DIES FOLLOWING OPERATION

Syracuse, Sept. 3 (AP).—Dean Frederick Franklin Moon, head of the New York State College of Forestry for the past nine years, died in a hospital here today after an operation two weeks ago. Dean Moon had suffered from acute attacks of abdominal disorders for years. He underwent an operation August 23 and a slight gain was reported.

He was born July 3, 1880, at Easton, Pa., and attended Amherst College, Harvard and Yale Universities, receiving the degree of Master of Forestry from the latter. All his life was spent in forestry work and he was considered an outstanding authority in his field. He joined the faculty of the State College of Forestry here in 1912.

Among some of his works were "Elements of Forestry" and "The Book of Forestry".

FIRE DOES $250,000 DAMAGE AT MARYLAND SEASIDE RESORT.

Ocean City, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—Fire of unknown origin destroyed 15 concessions along the boardwalk of Maryland's only ocean resort early this morning, causing damage estimated at $250,000. Aided by fire fighting apparatus from seven nearby towns the fire was brought under control at 2 o'clock after it had been burning for more than an hour.

At 1:15 the flames reached the Atlantic Hotel but did no damage to the structure. The section burned extended 400 yards north of the hotel to Playland, an amusement park where the fire was supposed to have started in a sandwich shop.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 3, 1929.

THE ARABS' GRIEVANCE

The sudden outbreak of trouble in the Holy Land shocked the world, although it had been threatened for some years. It was founded in both religious and political misunderstanding. The Arabs believed at the close of the war that they were to be allowed the creation of a new Arab state in return for their services in the Allies' cause. They were disappointed and angered when the British government, given the mandate for that region, announced only the establishment in Palestine of a "national home for the Jewish people," without prejudice to "the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities" in that country. This was pale assurance in contrast with their rosy hopes of independence.

The Zionist movement leaders themselves have shown a willingness to respect the rights of the Arabs and have tried to co-operate with them. The Arabs have not responded cordially to these advances because they desired so much more. There is real sympathy for the Arabs' desire for independence. There is no sympathy at all for their method of expressing dissatisfaction by murdering innocent people not responsible for the political situation. The British troops got this particular outbreak in hand promptly, but the situation will not really be cleared up until the sources of discontent are ended. Something will have to be done toward this end before the great unrest throughout Mohammedan countries will subside.

New York observers were driven to excitement when they saw the black, rolling clouds of smoke from a big tugboat quickly changed to a light brown and then to a faintly visible wisp of tan, when a new smoke-consuming device was connected. There was no more offense to the eye, nose and throat. Surrounding scenery became visible again, and a prolific source of dirt was abolished as if by magic. If such a device were applied by wholesale in cities where soft coal is the prevailing fuel, the magic would seem greater and the relief far more pronounced. There is no question that smoke can be abolished. Neither is there any question that fuel and money can be saved by abolishing it. Industry could afford it. The gains to the public in beauty, health and cleaning bills would be incalculable. This single improvement would do more than anything else to make industrial cities pleasant to live in.

The races and stunts and expert flying exhibitions taking place at the National Air Races in Cleveland seemed to attract the greatest popular attention. There was another side to the occasion, however. At the public auditorium where a large aviation exposition was held simultaneously with the flying performances, the throngs of visitors evinced an amazing interest in the prices of aircraft and the possibilities of owning and flying private planes. They gazed at the exhibits and figuratively fingered their purses. It is reported that there were such inquiries as "How much will you allow me for my five-passenger touring car?" A plane with folding wings brought joyous comments from people who saw instantly the possibility of stowing such a vehicle in the back yard garage.

Tex Rickard, the famous promoter, was thought to be a millionaire when he died. He evidently thought so himself. He left a will creating a $500,000 trust fund for his infant daughter, and his wife was liberally provided for. Now the estate is found to consist mostly of I. O. U.'s. Mrs. Rickard has about a trunkful of them, and nothing much else except a home in Florida. There is nothing for the daughter. Careless loans to friends—that tells the story. Many a "good fellow," while kind to his friends, is unintentionally cruel to his own family. Personal loans are sometimes wise and right; but generally speaking, they are a very poor form of investment.

Europe is getting ahead," reports Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Her people are better clothed, better fed and better housed than ever before. This doesn't mean ideal conditions. Europeans are still far behind Americans in the blessings of prosperity. We are so exceptionally blest that we cannot judge the rest of the world by our own condition. But judged by its own pre-war standards, Europe is doing well.

A New York World columnist notes the receipt of a letter from a man with the surname of Sewer—"believe it or not." It will not be hard to believe by the acquaintances of a few of our citizens bearing the surname of Hell—which they decline to change because the meaning of the word in their mother tongue is quite irreproachable.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

DID YOUR VACATION HELP?

You have had your vacation and as you find it a little difficult to get back to real work, you wonder if a vacation is really worth while.

Work has accumulated; certain things have been done that shouldn't have been done.

In order to get things "cleared up" you work a little overtime, eat a little irregularly, and get a little less sleep than usual.

You feel a bit "seedy" and are quite willing to agree with anyone who says that a vacation takes more out of one than does real hard work.

Now a vacation that is a vacation is one that takes you out of yourself, out of your regular every day routine of life mentally and physically. It is this "change" that should give your life the reaction it needs.

It is just like the cold bath in the morning. If you react properly from it and feel "fresh" all day, then the morning cold bath is a good thing for you.

If it does not do this, and you feel "weary" before noon every day, then the cold bath is a mistake in your case. Perhaps a little warm water up to the ankles before you turn on the cold shower will suit you best.

And similarly with a vacation. There is something that is not just right or just doesn't suit you, if you do not feel like work when you return. So try to figure out where you are failing to get from your vacation all you should get.

And when you do get back from a helpful vacation, try to remember why it was so helpful.

You'll find that it was because you had "nothing on your mind" and when you went anywhere or did anything it was done with youthful enthusiasm; no restraint.

Your meals tasted good to you for this reason, and also because you were outdoors more and getting a different style of food and cooking.

You moved about so much that your liver and gall bladder were stirred to action, and your blood was that much purer. And you slept like a child.

So don't start in to work after a vacation and forget the simpler rules of health—enough outdoors with exercise if possible; enough food (no more) with meals spread well apart; enough sleep to give your body its rest and relaxation.

EAST KINGSTON.

East Kingston, Sept. 3.—Miss Clara Szekeres has fully recovered from her recent illness. Her Sunday school class welcomed her back to her regular place Sunday with 100 per cent attendance.

E. started a rally in the fifth inning, which defeated the East Kingston representatives. The four team deadlock is expected to be broken this week.

Charles Smith remains about the same.

The rehearsals for the minstrel show to be given at the TXT Club on September 20 are progressing. Ray Nickerson, the director, is very much pleased.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held at the church Wednesday at 2 p. m. Plans will be completed for the lawn party to be held at Mr. Saunder's home on Albany avenue extension, Thursday, September 5, and the menu for the supper will be prepared.

Death Treasure

By R. A. J. WALLING

SYNOPSIS: Warned by Veronica's message that Cousin John is in danger, Tom Gresham and his furtive guest flee from Woolcot through the kitchen just as Professor Laxton arrives at the front door on an unexpected visit. Cousin John reveals a remarkable familiarity with the region and leads Tom quickly to the road along the sea. Here they meet Veronica who brings news that the police are searching for them. Cousin John's capture is imminent but Tom has a happy thought—the speed-boat Fiftiper and France across the channel. Veronica makes a hasty trip to give some message to her mother, and then, the three paddle out to Royle's boat, slip the moorings and are off for a thrilling race—Cousin John's safety the prize.

Chapter 29

PURSUIT

OUR craft floated rapidly with the tide. Veronica had the wheel in her hands doing her best to keep Fiftiper from the shoal waters as she drifted down first stern foremost and then broadside.

"Now," said Veronica, "does anybody know anything about engines?"

Cousin John and I would have roared with laughter at a less serious moment. The idea of commandeering a complicated craft like Fiftiper, slipping moorings, falling down towards the sea, and knowing that pursuit was probable, then asking that question. . . .

Neither Cousin John nor I knew engines, but Veronica was not worried.

"I only asked," said she, "because engines are so messy. I know 'em, but I hate to touch 'em. However, here goes. I'll get ready to start up as soon as she begins to feel the Channel. No lights till we get outside."

Veronica had switched off the reading light.

"Dick, keep a sharp lookout! Tom, take the wheel."

And this amazing young woman got down into the cockpit.

"It might be as well to see whether there's petrol in the tank, Veronica," said Cousin John.

She found two large tanks full—petrol enough for a long run.

Approaching Sandypoint, we lost all shore lights except the red lamp of the ferry at Passage. The drifting boat began to rise and fall on the Channel swell and appeared to lose way.

"Now then!" said Veronica. "I'll take the wheel. Tom, you keep a lookout with Dick. You can only see straight ahead. But that's all you want. Nothing will hit us behind and Fiftiper can make rings round anything coming up or down Channel."

I gave up the wheel and crouched behind the wind-screen. Veronica sat in the middle with a sort of dash-board in front of her; as well as the engine instruments it had a small compass under a dash-light.

She switched in an electric starter and got the engine going with a noise which to my ears sounded as though it must be heard all over England. She let in her clutch. Fiftiper trembled and moved.

"Southwest by west, two points west," Veronica recited, with her eye on the compass. "And what's the time?"

"Half-past 11," said I.

"It'll be light at half-past 3. Four hours. Fours into 110—do it for me, one of you."

I told her 27 and a half.

"Half speed, then."

The hand of the speed indicator worked round to 25 and beyond till it stood steady just under 30. Fiftiper slid through or rather over the water.

Our most unpleasant sensation was cold. We had rushed away from Woodcot without the slightest preparation. Rugs and some heavy oilskins kept the wind from bitting. We spoke hardly at all.

Veronica's nearness colored my reflections. In the excitement of her mood she had called me by my first name, and, greatly daring, I had called her Veronica and met with no reproof. It might mean . . .

Hour after hour we roared and bumped from swell to swell across the Channel. It was a lovely summer night. We met with no mishaps.

A hundred times on that journey I wanted to cry out: "What's it all about? Who are you? Why are we here?" But Veronica's little steel-strung figure and the pucker on her forehead kept me quiet. I would leave it to Veronica to explain in her own way at her own time.

Under her direction I got out Royle's water-tight tin of cakes and biscuits.

That was all the incident until at 3 o'clock we made out a coast line 10 or 15 miles away.

"Know where we are, Veronica?" Cousin John asked.

"If I know! The Seven Islands to port, Triagox to starboard. I've been here often before."

But it was a little wonderful a girl should set off from the English shore near midnight and navigate so accurately she sighted the coast not more than 10 miles from the point at which she aimed. Veronica pooh-poohed any credit.

Fiftiper sped away from the pursuer to shore—and safety for Cousin John.

"Excellent," said Cousin John. "But how do we get ashore?"

"Afraid we wade—or you do, Dick. You'll be able to dry off, dress and vamoose before anybody at Saint Michel sees you."

The boat now ran westward about five miles outside the light on the Ile de Bono, one of the Seven Islands.

We had seemed to have the sea to ourselves, but I happened to look back and saw a vessel discharging a great quantity of smoke which smudged the eastern sky. I cried out.

"Andy's binoculars are in that locker," said Veronica. "Have a look at him, Dick."

Cousin John steadied himself.

"I've got him," he said. "Warship of sorts—he's signaling something. What is it, Veronica?"

"Here—give me the glass and take the wheel."

"International code," she said. "A-r-r-e-t-e- —Stop— Would he, by gum! Not this child! We don't see the signal."

She handed the glass back to Cousin John, took her place again, opened the throttle and let the engine right out. Fiftiper skimmed past the last of the Triagox rocks at the speed of an express train.

In 10 minutes Veronica swung hard over to port and Fiftiper headed for a wide bay. A twisting lane of buoys marked a channel. Fiftiper entered it.

"Whoever he is, he can't come in here," Veronica said, throttling down, "not by a long way. The tide runs out four miles. I can go up some distance, Dick: tide's making again now. There's a sandbank generally dry on the edge of the channel about a mile ahead. That's half a mile or thereabouts from the little hollow—you see it, all trees? You can wade from the sandbank to that point."

"Little Veronica," said Cousin John, "you're a marvel. When I step over the side it may be good-by—you know that?"

"Don't be so beastly sentimental, Dick," Veronica urged him. "Keep to the brass tacks. When you land beyond those houses, go back into the country till you can work round westward to St. Ethan or Plestin. There's a light railway connecting with the Ouest at Morlaix. Then you can get anywhere you like—quick now, no time to lose."

Fur Trimming Is Feature of Coats

Diagonal Seaming and Back Flare on Majority of New Models.

Heavy tweeds and woolens of the fancy weaves that defy classification are still chosen for most of the sports coats, which have often a trimming of the less elaborate furs. Paquin, famous for his coats ever since you were shopping for panty-waists and sunbonnets, says a fashion writer in the New York World, has had the audacity to use such informal fabrics as tweed for coats which are in the sophisticated fashion of the princess silhouette. One of his most notable offerings is of heavy tweed in a grayish mixture. It has a distinct nipping in at the natural waistline and a collar of ombre lynx, set low so that the tweed frames the face.

Many of the coats from the smaller houses are built on "trench" lines, but with an elaboration which would probably send a doughboy into a bad fit of hysterics if he heard the term. These, developed in any of the heavy woolen fabrics, have belts set high to accent the fullness of the skirts, raglan sleeves and sometimes yokes.

Interest in coats for town or afternoon wear will probably remain highly academic for some months. Those which have reached this continent show a distinct departure from the simplicity of straight-up-and-down lines and have often diagonal seamings and a back flare. Vionnet sent over her corkscrew coat as a transition model. The silhouette remains straight, but there is not an individual straight line used. Many of the coats have cape backs or cape sleeves, and few, dedicated to afternoon wear exclusively, show a slight slanting from front to back about the hem.

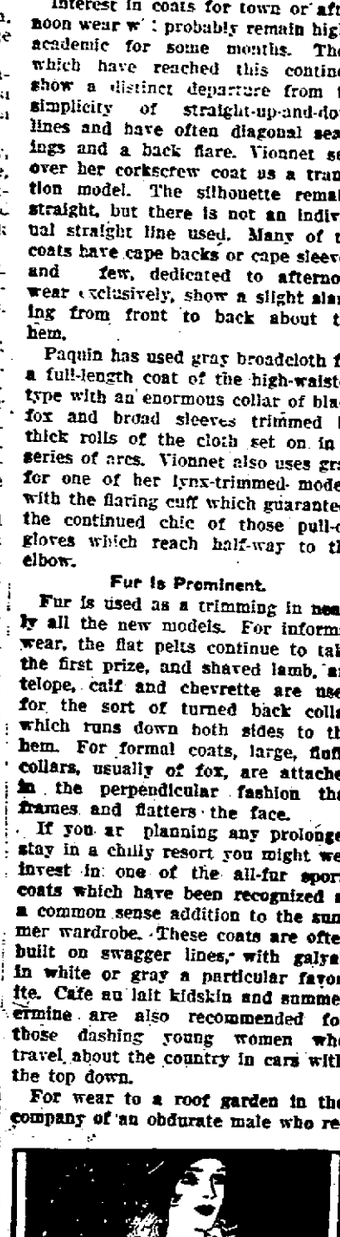
Paquin has used gray broadcloth for a full-length coat of the high-waisted type with an enormous collar of black fox and broad sleeves trimmed by thick rolls of the cloth set on in a series of arcs. Vionnet also uses gray for one of her lynx-trimmed models with the flaring cuff which guarantees the continued chic of those pull-on gloves which reach half-way to the elbow.

Fur Is Prominent.

Fur is used as a trimming in nearly all the new models. For informal wear, the flat pelts continue to take the first prize, and shaved lamb, antelope, calf and chevrette are used for the sort of turned back collar which runs down both sides to the hem. For formal coats, large, fluffy collars, usually of fox, are attached in the perpendicular fashion that frames and flatters the face.

If you are planning any prolonged stay in a chilly resort you might well invest in one of the all-fur sports coats which have been recognized as a common sense addition to the summer wardrobe. These coats are often built on swagger lines, with galyak in white or gray a particular favorite. Cafe au lait kidskin and summer ermine are also recommended for those dashing young women who travel about the country in cars with the top down.

For wear to a roof garden in the company of an obdurate male who refuses to climb into a dinner coat you may find one of the new crepe coats from France very useful. One very smart coat of this type is a simple affair of black crepe with a large cape collar topped by a few feet of silver fox. Another has a prophetic flare about the back, obtained in this case by means of a circular flounce and a neckline made notable by a very large, very red fox collar.



Coat of Light and Dark Green Tweed Has an Unusual Bias Cut.

Suede Shoes for Fall.

Everyone who has been wondering what the fall will bring in the way of shoe fashions will be put out of her suspense by a glance at the following paragraph:

It is the feeling of one authoritative firm that this will be a season when suede will predominate even more than in former years, when it has been nothing unusual. Suede has always been more highly favored in New York than out in the open spaces of God's country, where kid has held the center of the stage. This year, for the first time, even the damsels of Hollywood and the South will take to suede and to suede and calf combinations for street wear.

Following in importance after suede will be lizard, the one perennial reptile whose great popularity may be explained by the fact that in the beige and brown tones it blends pleasantly with fur. Since the furriers predict a big season for beige lapin and mink gills, it is probable that the beige and brown tones will be particularly welcome this year. Trailing very much in the rear is kid, and boroso, which to the regret of this extravagant department, is definitely passe.

For daytime wear the welt shoe will continue to be discussed by all the fashion authorities, bought by a few conscientiously smart women, and then neglected on the shelves of their closets on account of its great weight. With this difficulty in mind, shoecraft has intelligently combined the advantages of the welt shoe with the lightness of the oxford made inside out—as all shoes with the exception of the brogues of sports use are, in case you are not up to the little details of the craft.

For a walking shoe in either black or brown they use calf as a trim on matching suede, combining with this the solid leather heel which was the great talking point of the welt shoe. In one case it is built up far higher than its kind and comes into the high-low heel's class, which is confidently expected to sweep the country early this autumn.

For wear with the sort of runabout town dress that falls into none of the convenient fashions classifications, and to accompany the fall tailleur, the open shank sandal is offered. When the thermometer takes a plunge and fur coats appear the closed strap shoe will be considered far more smart. For the same purpose the two-eyelet or one-eyelet oxford is an excellent choice for the woman who specializes in a rather chichi femininity.

Colored Shoes Liked.

The vogue for colored shoes shows no sign of a decrease. Blue, which has become as classic a shade as black and brown, will retain its popularity, but the crystal-gazing experts predict that dark green will also be of importance. This insidious effort to induce women to buy a different colored pair of shoes to accompany every dress in their wardrobe is succeeding.

One of the newest colors is chianti, which takes its name from the red and not the white variety of the wine, and is urged on you to accompany any costume in which any of the darker reds occur. A second new shade is known as pansy or antique purple, depending on nothing in the world but the fancy of the shop you patronize. Although purple shoes may suggest to you nothing but the burlesque circuit, pansy is dark enough to be approved by the smarter sort of grandmothers, and is stunning in suede or the more dubious kid.

Shoe buckles for day and evening wear were formerly matched up to the earrings and hat ornaments by conscientious ladies of the ensemble. Now that our ideas of harmony in a costume have become more supple, buckles are chosen to match the shoe rather than the other accessories, and a wider range of formality is allowed those very feminine women who use buckles to call attention to the small-ness of their feet.

Buckles are urged for opera pumps at all times of the day. For a morning's shopping tour the newest suggestion is a pair of suede oxfords, brown, of any appropriate shade, with an edging of cut-steel beads.

For afternoon wear larger buckles are recommended, and these, for the most part, are large spheres of cut steel arranged in an open work design.

Fox Collar Is Effective on Black Silk Coat. Flare Is in Back.

A TOP-COAT IS ALL THE BETTER FOR A YOKE AND A BELT

New York—Perhaps the most interesting feature of the new fall coat is the detail of its sleeves. Raglan and other set-in sleeves have the smartest sponsorship, and cuffs are up to all sorts of tricks some of which go to the length of touching the elbow. Possibly designers feel that having captured the waistline and brought it home to roost so to speak they will pursue the matter of the sleeve, recapturing some of the sleeves of yesteryear, or at least borrowing ideas from a period in which sleeves seemed tremendously important.

(Copyright, 1929, by Fairchild)

Coats quite naturally flare in some cases but not all. Sports clothes are entitled to remain within bounds associated with them, and show an independence of thought which makes for interest. Since there must be some line of demarkation between country and town clothes, it might as well be in silhouette as in fabric or color. The top coat preserves its slim, well tailored lines and is greatly inclined to cut-in-one-sleeves to a yoke. Its collar is usually sans fur, and cut on convertible lines, and in nine out of ten cases, the belt nips in after the once again approved order of belts.

If the top coat is tweed, which it so often is, the sports hat may be tweed also. If it is a felt hat the chances are that the band will be of the coat fabric. Smart tweed and other wool purses have a way of completing such a costume.

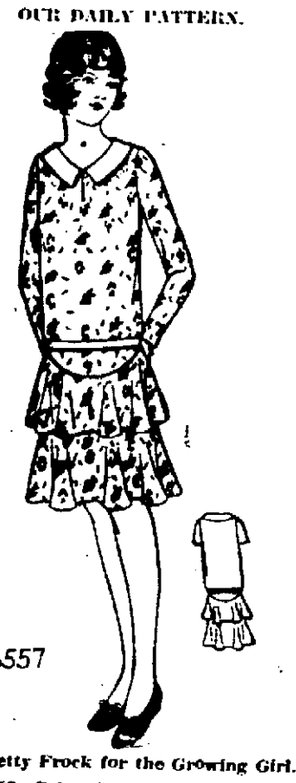
OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Pretty Frock for the Growing Girl.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. To make the dress with long sleeves for a 12-year size will require 3¼ yards of material 39 inches wide. With short sleeves the material will be 1-2 yard less. For collar and belt of contrasting material 1-3 yard is required 32 inches wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Study of mortality records has convinced Chester Hume Forsyth, assistant Professor of Mathematics at Dartmouth, that the average length of life in this country is decreasing. Presenting his views in the publication Science he says the reductions in death rates at early ages have been more than offset by mortality at advanced ages.

Halifax, N. S.—The boys in the forties seem to know how to run marathons. Twenty-five athletes competed in one here yesterday. The ages of the first five finishers: 41, 43, 38, 53, 49. The winner was Clarence DeMar.

Lakewood, N. J.—Thomas J. Earley is a 100-year-old bachelor who plays solitaire nightly with a midnight repast at stake. If he wins he eats two crackers; if he loses he has only one. He works eight hours a day as handy man on an estate and always has been as enthusiastic about his avocation of volunteer fireman as he has been averse to matrimony.

New Haven—How to rate basketball players: Take the average of five jumps straight into the air, multiply by the weight and divide by time it takes the individual to respond to a command. Such is the index of efficiency described to scientists here by Dr. Coleman E. Griffith, of the University of Illinois.

New York—Mighty and clever are the Vikings when it comes to salt water. Eight huskies from the Norwegian ship Sub Americano won an international lifeboat race in the harbor. At the finish it was discovered that the bottom of their boat had been greased. Loud were the protests, but it was not forbidden in the rules. It will be taboo hereafter.

Ossining, N. Y.—The pole vault has been abolished in track athletics at Sing Sing. You're right. Of course the season must have been that one of the state's guests would be prompted to scale the walls of their residence.

Charleston, S. C.—Paul Muller, who sailed from Germany alone in an 18-foot boat that was wrecked near here, is on the way to New York in a reproduction of the original craft. His bride of a week, Agatha Gavinski, who came from Germany to marry him, followed him 20 miles to sea in another boat to wish him bon voyage.

Ponca City, Okla.—Bobby Jones, straight down the fairway all the way, has won a first prize of $6,580. Yes, this Bobby is a pro. He ran first in the annual Terrapin derby over a 75-foot course.

Activities at Redeemer Church

A special meeting of the Senior Luther League of Redeemer Lutheran Church will be held this evening for the purpose of considering plans for the musicale to be given at 79 West O'Reilly street on September 20. On the same evening the executive committee of the Ladies' Aid Society will meet. The church council will also meet to assist in certain improvements to the church.

On Wednesday evening the Downtown Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. Ed. Leudtke, 273 West Chestnut street.

On Thursday evening at 6:45 the Junior Choir will resume rehearsals while the Senior Choir will resume rehearsals at 7:45.

Important business will be considered by the Ladies' Aid and Mission Society at their first fall meeting on Thursday evening.

The Bible school will resume its Sunday sessions at 11:45 a. m., commencing Sunday. Evening services will also be resumed Sunday.

Be Thrifty of Time

Believe me when I tell you that thrift of time will repay you in afterlife with a mercy of profit beyond your most sanguine dreams; and waste of it will make you dwindle alike in intellectual and moral stature, beyond your darkest reckoning.—Gladstone.

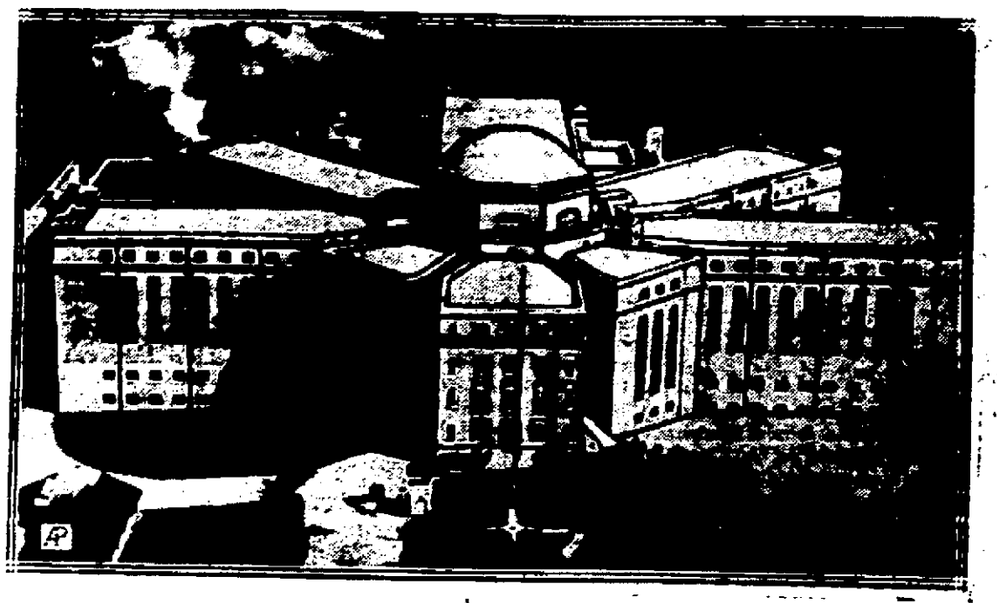
Grim Soldier Prison Awaits U. S. Convicts



The United States army disciplinary barracks at Ft. Leavenworth, Kas., taken over by the department of justice for the overflow from the United States civil penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Ft. Leavenworth, Kas. (AP).—It is a walled octagonal fortress, grim without but light and airy within, that will house the overflow from the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Once the dread of every soldier awaiting court martial for violation of the Articles of War, the disciplinary barracks of the army are to be taken over by the department of justice. The federal civil prison at Leavenworth has been so crowded in recent years that the government decided to annex the military prison at Ft. Leavenworth—the institutions are about two miles apart—and transfer the soldier convicts elsewhere. The military prison will care for 1,600.

Incidentally, it will be the second time the military prison has been used by the civil authorities. The barracks were used as a civil penitentiary between 1895 and 1905 while the large federal prison was being built.

The disciplinary barracks have been operated as a reclamation institution by the army, but the department of justice announces that civil prison regulations will govern the group of federal convicts transferred. Under the reclamation plan a soldier prisoner who conformed to certain strict requirements was restored after a specified period to his regiment with a clean record.

A part of the plan was to offer vocational instruction. Prisoners operated a 640-acre farm, took care of a dairy herd of 84 cattle, and of 8,000 chickens and 165 hogs.

Other activities for training included a green house, an ice plant, a tailor shop, a shoe and harness shop, carpentry and paint shops, machinery and blacksmith shops, a laundry and dry cleaning plant.

The barracks have seen one of the most prolonged prison mutinies in the history of the country. In March, 1919, the prison was crowded with many deserters who were conscientious objectors and radicals. A plot to burn the prison caused more than $100,000 in property damage.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Sept. 3.—Miss Leona LeFevre was a guest over the week-end of friends in Yonkers.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Jacobs are finishing their vacation in York, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. George Wicks and family are visiting friends in Westchester county.

The Misses Marjorie and Margaret Allen of Sandy Creek, New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Cole.

Mrs. Helen Paterson has been entertaining Mrs. M. Canady, formerly of New Paltz, also Mrs. Kate Dominick of Clinton, N. J.

Mrs. Jerome LeFevre and Miss Evelyn DuBois are taking a vacation along the Jersey coast.

Estimates of the plans for the new training school are being drawn up in the State Architect's office in Albany. It is expected that the new building will be situated in the rectangle behind the school.

Registration Day at the Normal occurs on the tenth of September this year. According to the number of application blanks so far accepted it would appear that the enrollment will equal that of last year.

Mrs. Amelia Vandemark recently accompanied friends to Wassaic, Dutchess county, where they called on Mrs. Orson Loper.

Miss Alice Milliman is to take Miss Rich's place in the sixth grade at the Normal. Miss Milliman was critic in the seventh grade last year.

Irvin L. Small of South Dakota will act as head of the new rural training school department. He will be assisted by Miss Ellen Rich, formerly demonstration teacher and critic in sixth grade. Mr. Small, his wife, their two children, and Mrs. Small's father will reside in one side of Abram P. LeFevre's house on John street.

The new apartment house of Morgan K. Coutant, just erected on Excelsior avenue, will be occupied by members of the Normal School faculty. Miss Jessie Prisch and Miss Florence Lane, respectively, are to have the two downstairs apartments, while Miss Mary Josephine Murphy is to have one of the upstairs ones. The other will be occupied by the Misses Alice Herald and Lucille Thompson together.

Olin Todd Frazier and family are moving into the Stanley Osborne house on Oakwood Terrace.

Miss Lucille Thompson is enjoying her two weeks' vacation at her home in Allegany, N. Y. Upon her return to New Paltz she will be accompanied by an aunt, Miss Wyckof, and a friend.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Florence Denel Cassidy, wife of Mark C. Cassidy, of Glenside, Pennsylvania, formerly of New Paltz, died in a Trenton, New Jersey, hospital as a result of an automobile accident. She was returning with friends from a trip to Asbury Park. On the outskirts of Trenton the sedan containing her party was struck broad side by a car coming from a side street and hurled over three times. Her seven year old daughter, Jeanne, received minor bruises.

Mrs. Kate Nelson entertained guests from High Falls on Thursday.

Miss Ruth Havens is now staying at a hotel in Santa Fe, New Mexico. On her way west she stopped at Chicago in order to visit relatives. She has written from New Mexico saying she has recently seen an actual Indian fiesta by moonlight, inspected a western coast to coast airplane and talked to the pilot, but denies having flown in the airplane.

James Turner has returned from Detroit, where he has been visiting his son.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar V. Beebe accompanied by their son Edmund, and daughter Catherine, are at present visiting Mrs. Beebe's people in Cohocton, N. Y. They have been also visiting in Syracuse and Rochester. DeWitt Beebe, their other son, is staying with Mrs. Beebe's sister, Mrs. Humphrey, in town.

Miss Marion Payne, a graduate of Syracuse University, is to teach History in the high school department. Miss Payne, together with the Misses Holt, Harding and Eberle, are to live in the Freer House on upper Main street.

Several new teachers are to join the ranks of the Faculty at the Normal this September. Howard B. Hoffman, a resident of Ann Arbor, Michigan, and a graduate of the Michigan State University, will teach in the music department. Mr. Hoffman with his wife and two children will live in the house of William Robinson on Wurts avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold DuBois spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elliott.

George Clinton attended the Goshen races on Wednesday.

BELIEVE BODY WAS THAT OF YOUNG SWISS FLIER

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 3 (AP).—Belief was held here today that the body of one of the two youthful Swiss fliers missing since August 19 when they made an attempt to cross the Atlantic to New York has been located and buried near here.

On Friday of last week the body of a fair-haired youth clad in a yellow suit and wearing aviation goggles was washed up on Ericeira Beach. The belief is that it was that of either Oscar Kaeser or Kurt Leuscher, the boyish Swiss fliers.

The body was buried in the local cemetery.

The fliers took off from a beach near here on August 19, hoping to complete a non-stop flight to New York. They subsequently were seen out on the Atlantic 170 miles west of Lisbon by a steamship and there was a report that they had been seen over one of the islands of the Azores. Nothing more was heard of them.

This Lady Given Up To Die Is Now Well and Happy Again

Was Told She Could Not Live, Declares That Nu-Erb Made Her Well.

The following story is told by Mrs. Albert Weber, a well-known lady residing at 39 Main street, Niagara Falls, N. Y.:

"September, 1927, my husband and I went south to Florida. I was at that time in normal health and weighed 120 pounds. After being there less than three weeks I was taken ill with mastoid in both ears. Before recovering from this I had an attack of spinal meningitis, which kept me in bed five months in all. Four physicians and surgeons and a trained nurse attended me constantly. Three times I was given up to die, but rallied back sufficiently until after much insistence on my part the medical authorities finally gave their consent for me to return north in a Pullman car.

"Shortly after our return and while I was still unable to walk my husband heard of Nu-Erb and persuaded me to give it a trial. It is no exaggeration that six days after I started using this medicine I was feeling better, and it was not much longer that I found myself able to take short walks. I am now in better health than I ever hoped to be again, have gained 14 pounds in weight, having wasted away to 80 pounds during my illness. I have not had to take a cathartic since I started taking Nu-Erb, and before that was a daily occurrence.

"I am freely giving this testimony out of gratitude for what this wonderful medicine has done for me. I do not in any way criticize the medical profession. They did everything possible for me, but Nu-Erb just helped me after every other method failed, and I recommend it to anyone who is not well."

MRS. ALBERT WEBER.

Nu-Erb cleanses the system of poisonous waste matter and tones and strengthens the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels.

Nu-Erb is being especially introduced in Kingston by McBRIDE DRUG STORE, 312 Wall Street.

Go see the "Nu-Erb" specialist now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

THE SUMMER GONE.

The summer passed on wings of gold—
It held for me a wealth untold
Of amber days, and silver nights,
Of lazy hours and—chigger bites.

A summer that was made for love,
The beach below, the moon above
That seemed to gild each tiny flock
Of foam and—sand flies down my neck.

Silent walks beneath the trees
That seems to whisper to each breeze,
The molten sunlight in your hair
—And poison ivy everywhere.

And then to fill my cup of woe
High to the point of overflow,
One gorgeous midnight, balmy, still,
—A rampant skunk beneath my sill!

Two friends had met after a year or so, to find that both were married. At that they waxed confidential.

"Say, Bill, does your wife treat you right?" asked the first.

"Well, I can't kick," was the reply.

"You're blamed right you can't—neither can I. Tough, ain't it old boy."

The girl applied for a situation in a Kingston office.

"How many posts have you had before?" asked the chief clerk.

"Only one," said the girl.

"That's good. How long did you keep it?"

"I kept it a week," replied the girl.

"That's not so good," observed the chief. "Why did they discharge you?"

"Well, you see, I was at Woolworth's, and couldn't remember the prices."

Little Mary getting her first sight of a peacock. "Look quick auntie, one of your chickens is in bloom."

A story that's going the rounds concerns the inebriated Irishman who came home late one night and tripped over a litter of the much-talked of "pigs in the parlor."

"Saints protect me," wailed Mike "the cockroaches are growing snouts."

"Oh, a joint bank account must be nice."

"Yes, it's a lovely arrangement. My husband deposits the money, and I draw it out."

One thing is fairly certain. It's the head of the house that wears the bob.

Teacher: "Johnny, what is the difference between a vision and a sight?"

Jonhny: "When our Ethel goes out in the evening she's a vision, but when she gets up she's a sight."

A TOAST.

Here's to the old-fashioned girl:
To her old-fashioned ways
And the old-fashioned days,
And to all for which we're her debtor;
My glass I raise,
Her charms I praise,
But I like the modern girl better.

Wife (reading newspaper)—"It says here that a girl, single handed, landed a fish at a Long Island resort weighing 145 pounds."

Hubby: "What's his name?"

Question: "What is etiquette?"
Answer: "Saying, No thank you" when you mean "gimme."

The boss in the family is the one that feels offended when the other complains of a pain, also.

The spirit with which we serve is quite as important as the service itself.

TASTE WARNS TOO LATE FOR SAFETY

Foods may "taste all right" and yet be dangerous to health. Your doctor will tell you that foods spoil because of the tiny micro-organisms which become active when these perishables are kept for long at a temperature above fifty degrees. Fifty degrees is the danger point. For cold can conquer these bacteria and arrest their progress. In foods kept above fifty degrees—even two, three or four points—the micro-organisms multiply astonishingly, and are lurking menaces to health, even though they may not noticeably affect the taste of the food.

Year 'round refrigeration is the one safe way to keep perishables at exactly the right temperature without changing the wholesome condition of the food, or destroying a particle of its nourishment value. Window-sill and back-porch makeshifts keep foods too warm or too cold—both dangerous to health.

THOUSANDS SEE PARACHUTE JUMPER FALL TO HIS DEATH

Niagara Falls, Sept. 3 (AP).—Thousands saw a parachute jumper fall to his death on the Canadian side of the falls yesterday.

Leslie Mackey, 28, of Windsor, Ont., a professional parachute jumper, went up 2,700 feet in an airplane. Witnesses said he had trouble getting clear of the plane, and when he finally dropped, the parachute failed to open. He fell into a field at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., which is across the river from Youngstown, N. Y., where his parachute jump was to have been the feature of a Labor Day celebration.

LADY MARY HAS IMPROVED CHANCES OF RECOVERY

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP)—Lady Mary Heath, Irish aviatrix, injured in a test landing here Thursday during the national air races, has improved chance of recovery, her physicians said today.

Lady Mary, distinguished for her long distance flights, suffered a severe fracture of the skull when her plane plunged through the roof of a factory.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—The stock market continued to ride today on the crest of the bullish enthusiasm which carried prices to new high records last month. Flurries of selling swept through the market at intervals as conservative traders, alarmed at the rapidity of the upward pace, took profits, but new leaders were quickly brought forward to stem the selling.

Extreme gains in a long list of active issues ranged from 2 to 10 points, with American International Telephone, United States Steel Common, Union Carbide and American Water Works among the stock to reach new high ground.

Call money renewed unchanged at 9 per cent. A heavy calling of loans prevented the rate from going lower with the return flow of holiday currency to the banks.

Two of the most favorable developments in the day's news were the advance in the price of domestic copper to 18¼ cents a pound by one producer, apparently setting at rest fears of a further reduction, and the publication of a record-breaking August sales statement by Montgomery-Ward.

So great was the volume of trading that the ticker fell nearly 20 minutes behind the market at mid day. Some observers saw in this increased volume an indication that a sharp downward readjustment was likely this week, and several of the large commission houses urged customers to keep their accounts in liquid position.

United States Steel common suddenly spurted more than 5 points to a new top at 261¾, while Sloss Sheffield Steel sank 3 points to a new low at 50. American Telephone also was bid up more than 5 points to a new top at 303⅞ and International Telephone moved up 3¼ to a new high at 149¼.

Otis Elevator, American Power and Light, American Water Works, American Type Founders, R. H. Macy, Norfolk and Western, Best and Company, United States Industrial Alcohol, American Smelting and Public Service of New Jersey all advanced 5 to 10 points to the highest prices on record.

There were several soft spots. General Electric broke 5½ points, Westinghouse Electric 3⅝, and Lackawanna, Standard Gas and Electric, Stone and Webster, American and Foreign Power, New York Central, Atchison and Timken Roller Bearing sold down 2 to 3½ points in the midday flurry of selling.

668 NAMES ARE DRAWN TO GET JURY

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 3 (AP).—The second special venire called in trial of 16 men and women accused of the murder of O. F. Aderholt, was exhausted an hour after court convened this morning. After the names of the regular panel had been ordered called the defense objected to its being used and Judge Barnhill ordered another sepcial venire if 150. This is the third special venire and with the regular panel called at the outset of the term makes a total of 668 names drawn. Six days have been taken up with an effort to get a jury. Ten men were in the jury box today.

Historic Buildings in Finnish Town of Turku

Turku was Finland's first capital. Christianity was first taught there, and the first Christian converts were baptized in the River Aura. The oldest cathedral and the oldest castle in Finland are to be found in Turku, and nearly all the historic homes of the Finnish nobility are in or near the city.

With the exception of the cathedral and the castle, modern Turku has been built since the disastrous fire of 1827, when the old town was almost entirely destroyed in a blaze that burned for five days. Both the castle and the cathedral are grim structures with little exterior ornament. The cathedral has a long, narrow vaulted interior and most of the immense treasure which was once kept there has disappeared.

Part of the castle is now a museum and is furnished with pieces of old Finnish furniture. Visitors can still see the dungeon six fathoms deep and black as pitch where prisoners were kept. In the great central hall is a high gallery from which a cruel ruler once had unruly subjects hurled to the floor below. One cell in the castle is still known as the malefacter's resting place.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

No Need to Reckon Years

The numbering of years is a man-made artificiality, having little to do with the soul or the mind or the heart. An old anecdote of Napoleon tells of his conversation with a Hungarian officer who said he had fought in the army of Maria Theresa.

"You must be old," said Napoleon.

"Yes," said the officer, "I am sixty or seventy."

"Why, colonel," said the emperor, "you have certainly lived long enough to know how to count the years a little more closely."

"General," was the man's reply, "I reckon my money, my shirts, and my horses; but as for my years, I know that nobody will want to steal them, and that I shall never lose one of them."—Boston Herald.

The first Bible published in America was one in the Indian language, translated by John Eliot, who was known as the "Apostle to the Indians."

3 Automobiles Involved in Crash

Saturday afternoon three automobiles were involved in an accident on the Kingston-Ellenville highway near the High Falls road when a car driven by Rae Polansky of Ellenville attempted to pass a car traveling in the same direction in which her car was being driven. As she drove out to pass a car driven by William T. Jones of 21 Michigan street, Mohawk, N. Y., which was also traveling toward Ellenville a car dirven by Lewis Crystal of 17 7th street, Weehawken, N. J., approached from the opposite direction. The three cars came together with considerable damage to all.

Deputy Sheriff Mortimer H. Block of Accord was summoned and Mrs. Polansky was placed under arrest on a charge of driving without a driver's permit or proper registration certificate. She was taken before Justice of the Peace Louis Sahler at Stone Ridge who imposed a fine of $10 on each charge. Mrs. Polansky claimed she had a learner's permit but had left it in New York city. Her husband who came to the scene after the accident also claimed he had a registration certificate at home. On the promise of both to produce their papers next day before the judge a minimum fine was imposed. No one was injured in the crash.

Next day Mr. and Mrs. Polansky failed to appear at the judge's house as they had stated they would with the necessary papers. At the time of the accident Mrs. Polansky was accompanied by another driver.

TRY TO HARMONIZE LEAGUE COVENANT AND KELLOGG PACT

Geneva, Sept. 3 (AP).—The great statesmen of the League of Nations here for the tenth assembly session, are considering a way to supplement the league covenant by the Kellogg pact.

It was reported in league circles today that the British delegation proposed to recommend study of the league covenant with the idea of bringing it into harmony with the Kellogg pact for renunciation of war.

There is at présent a gap in the covenant which makes war possible and which the defunct Geneva protocol sought to fill.

Paragraph 7 of article 15 gives members of the league the right to take such action as they may deem necessary when the council of the league fails to reach unanimity as to which disputing nation should be held responsible for any aggression or attempted aggression.

The problem is to find out whether the covenant can be so amended by weaving in the underlying idea of the Kellogg pact, which outlaws aggressive wars, without attempting in any way to modify the Kellogg pact itself.

ANTARCTIC RADIO IMPULSE DRAWS LOS ANGELES CURTAIN

The feat was performed by prearrangement with Byrd.

The radio impulse from Byrd's camp was picked up by Station KPH of the Radio Corporation of America in San Francisco and relayed by wireless to Station KSE in Torrance, 20 miles from Los Angeles. From Torrance the impulse traveled by wire to the radio exposition. A crowd estimated at 10,000 stood in silence as the impulse threw a switch which set the horn sounding, and drew the curtains from Byrd's picture.

YOUNG HEFLIN IN JAIL ON CHARGE OF DRUNKENNESS

Phenix City, Ala., Sept. 3 (AP).—J. Tom Heflin, Jr., son of the Senior United States Senator from Alabama, was in jail here early today on charges of drunkenness and violating the state prohibition law. D. M. Haines, of Standing Rock, Ala., his companion, also was in jail, charged with operating an automobile while drunk.

Police Sergeant H. A. White today said both Heflin and Haines were endeavoring to make bond. Relatives of Heflin from Columbus were expected here shortly.

The two young men were arrested in Heflin's automobile with Haines at the wheel around midnight last night.

PLAN SECOND ATTEMPT IN EMPIRE STATE STANDARD

Syracuse, Sept. 3 (AP).—Far from discouraged by the forced landing which spelled defeat in their attempt to set a new refueling endurance record, Clyde E. Pangborn and Carl A. Dixon today were planning to take the air again later this month in the Empire State Standard in a second attempt.

The fliers said they would have the plane in good shape and would start their next flight September 23.

The lower left wing was damaged when it crashed into another ship on the Syracuse airport in making the landing last night. Neither of the pilots was hurt.

The landing was made after Dixon had worked two hours trying to repair a broken oil line. Both were drenched to the skin by oil and Pangborn made a three-point landing while oil flying into his eyes almost obscured his vision.

The plane took off a week ago yesterday and had been in the air 173 hours, 41 minutes and 23 seconds.

Teeth May Identify Slain Man.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP).—The victim of a "torch murder" found in the city dumps last month was tentatively identified as Joseph Deano, alias Camillo, of Scranton, Pa., and New York city, who was sought by police of Lancaster, Pa., for the slaying of Police Lieutenant Elwood Gainor in 1927. Police Captain Sebold said he would show rogue's gallery pictures of Deano to a Cleveland dentist who notified him last week he knew the dead man as a patient in July. The dentist had responded to one of 40,000 circulars sent out by authorities. The body believed to have been Deano's was found in an automobile August 9. Flames had charred the corpse beyond all hope of recognition, and dental work was the only means of tracing the victim.

MAN KILLED AT CASTLETON RAIL CROSSING

Einar Johanson, thirty-five, dredge man for the Standard Dredging Company, operating between Albany and Castleton, was struck and killed by northbound New York Central train seven, shortly before 6:30 o'clock last night at the Green avenue crossing in Castleton.

The body was caught on the cowcatcher of the engine and carried nearly a half mile before the train came to a halt in the upper end of the village, according to eye-witnesses.

There was no flagman on duty at the crossing at the time of the accident, according to Joseph Andros, assistant station agent at Castleton, who said the flagman went off duty at 6 o'clock, nearly a half hour earlier.

Johanson had living quarters on the dredge New York on which he was employed. His permanent address was given as 899 West Eighty-ninth street, New York city.

Last Missionary Meeting.

The last missionary meeting of the Conference year will be held in the Free Methodist Church on Tremper avenue between Downs and O'Neil streets on Wednesday evening, September 4, at 7:45. At this meeting there is very important business to be transacted. Every member is requested to be present.

More than 2,000,000 pounds of wool were handled by the South Dakota Cooperative Wool growers this year.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Sept. 3.—By far the greatest excitement of the week was the special school meeting held Saturday evening. A large gathering was already on the grounds ere the time of the meeting arrived, gathering in groups here and there, discussing the momentous issues at stake. Two of the principal contestants almost came to blows. The school house standing room was at a premium. John Jordan, the trustee was chosen chairman and announced that the purpose of the meeting was to decide whether or not to build a road upon the school property, along the northerly side of the school house with entrance from the boulevard, or to repair the existing road, for which $150 was raised at the last annual school meeting. The result of the vote was that the trustee was empowered to construct a new road, with $150 at his disposal for the work. Following this action the minutes were read by the clerk and the meeting adjourned. Among unbiased observers, opinions were expressed as to the legality of the action, without rescinding the motion carried at the annual meeting.

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the kings depart.
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
A humble and a contrite heart.

Among the many spending the Labor Day week-end were Lawrence Kelder of Roselle, N. J., accompanied by his sister, Florence, and friend, Miss Evelyn Lightner.

Looking backward some twenty odd years ago, recollection comes of Labor Day, 1906, when the famous Shokan baseball team crossed bats with the equally famous Rifton Carpet Weavers. A double header was played that afternoon, Shokan winning the first game, 7 to 3. The second never to be forgotten contest ran eleven innings and might have continued indefinitely had not the gathering shades of evening called a halt to the hair raising contest, in which neither side could send a man over the plate. One Shokan runner succeeded in reaching third base and but one Rifton player made second. The opposing batteries were Lemuel Hall and Tom Keevey for the local team, while the left handed veteran, Woodchuck Freer, did the honors for Rifton. The writer is unable to recall the name of the Rifton catcher. Those Rifton boys were a fine bunch of fellows and were greatly admired for their good sportsmanship. A game with Rifton never failed to bring out a large attendance.

It is difficult for an observer today to look out upon the broad expanses of the reservoir and realize that once under its shining surface there flourished the beautiful village of old West Shokan, with its nearly two miles of cut stone sidewalk along the main street, lined with beautiful shade trees and fine private residences, stores, large public hall, churches, hotel, excellent baseball ground, the famous Crispell's maple grove and prosperous farms.

The present year with the Hickory Hill Poultry Farm is reported the best in its existence both from a financial standpoint and the volume of business transacted. During July and August the steady demand for eggs and chickens has kept the proprietors steadily on the go. In the flocks of some 1400 birds fifty per cent or better of the layers are 200 egg fowls. Mr. Weidner has built up a strain of Leghorns, pronounced by Professor Rice of Cornell to be second to none in this section of the state.

Mrs. May Gafkin has purchased a Standard Six Nash coupe through the local dealer, Claude Bell.

William Jones was recently paid a surprise visit by his two sons, Worth Paul and Frank of Ilion, N. Y., where for many years they have been in the employment of the Remington Arms Company. They came to attend the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Caroline Every.

The community is filled with out of town visitors, tourists and campers. The several boarding resorts are full up to capacity and turning people away and the refreshment stands doing big business, thus bringing the summer season to an official close in a most gratifying manner.

Sunday afternoon services at the Baptist Church were again well attended, the eloquent extemporaneous address by Pastor Ahrens from a text chosen by the vote of the congregation well merited the commendation accorded it. A lady representative of the New York Bible Society, among the visitors present, was much pleased with the service and the cordial greeting extended her.

It takes more than one blow to keep a good man down. Scarcely had the wreck of Lawren Hesley's burned truck cooled, than he had received his insurance money and placed an order for delivery of a new Ford truck through James Miliard Company of Kingston.

Mrs. Minnie Smith and granddaughter, Ruth, have recently arrived from Bridgeport, Conn. They were accompanied by Mrs. Leona Dandrew, who was born and grew up on her father's farm, owned in later years by Clark Personeus. She is a daughter of the late Elias Crispell, a brother of "Uncle Jake" of Shokan. Mrs. Dandrew, has not visited the scenes of her girlhood days since leaving here forty years ago and finds little except the mountains and hillside farms by which to identify her former home town.

Professor Condon, late principal of the Woodstock school will on Tuesday assume his new duties as principal of the three-room school at Haines Falls.

Mountain climbing is being revived of late. Recently a party from the Maple Dell ascended South Mountain just to limber up their legs preliminary to a trek on old High Point. On Thursday Ray Kelder and Robert Thompson escorted a party of young ladies to the summit, where the marvelous scenery was greatly enjoyed. Likewise a free indulgence of rather late but luscious huckleberries.

Shepard Bell, the village handy Andy, has been assisting Elwyn Davis in endeavoring to restore to use the artesian well on the old Hinkley farm. The renovation would have been a complete success had there been a more abundant supply of water, as the pump worked like a charm. A small supply of ice cold water is however better than none at all.

Sylvester Jones' latest exploit in well digging has been crowned with success. At a depth of scarcely ten feet, near his usually reliable spring. After a rock blast a vein of crystal cold water was reached of sufficient quantity to satisfy his requirements.

While examining one of those diminutive inexpensive looking watch charm pistols which he "didn't know was loaded." Willie Colange met with a painful surprise, when the little demon discharged its powerful contents into the end of Bill's left forefinger.

Robert Thompson, the ambitious young Highland high school graduate, who has been spending his vacation here principally in the employ of Mr. Massino, will enter the Moran Business School this week. During his stay here he has made numerous friends who wish him success in his new undertaking.

The Saturday night dance at the village hall was as usual a lively social gathering. These popular dances have added materially to the activities of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whittier of Port Washington, L. I., spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Miller at Brodhead. They were accompanied by Miss Mavis Miller who has been spending several weeks of her vacation with them.

After being spoiled by rain for the past three years, the Labor Day picnic held at Lambert's Grove proved to be a big success. There was a large gathering of the old-time neighbors and friends who enjoyed immensely the opportunity of assembling for another love feast.

Ernest Bell of Brooklyn accompanied by Walter and Justice Robbins were among the Labor Day visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lucht and son Howard of Mt. Vernon spent the week-end and holiday at Maple Dell Farm.

Two Wins For Koenig Team

The Koenig Kandy Kids scored two victories over the week-end. On Sunday afternoon they won at Catskill, 5 to 1, and at Hasbrouck Park Labor Day they blanked the Blue Sox, 15 to 0. Caunitz pitched for the Koenig team and so effective was his twirling that he fanned 13 men. The Koenig squad scored in every inning but the third. They hit "Red" Dunn hard.

All-Stars Beat H.V.S.H. Nine

The Kingston All-Stars split their games over the week-end. At Ellenville Sunday afternoon they lost to that team, 7 to 6, but at Wingdale Labor Day afternoon the tide was changed and the local boys beat the Harlem Valley State Hospital team, 10 to 7.

The All-Stars did great hitting in the Monday afternoon game. The bases were loaded and Paul Joyce, the former Kingston High School southpaw pitching ace, clouted out a home run. Harold Johnson pounded the ball in great style, getting five hits out of five trips to the plate.

Rondouts Lose To Poughkeepsie

The Rondouts received their second trimming over the week-end when the Silver and Gold club of Poughkeepsie took the game by a score of 9 to 1 at the Kingston Fair Grounds Labor Day afternoon. "Waco" Peters pitched good ball for three innings but as the game went on they began to find him.

The down river team had a big inning in the fifth. The visitors banged out five hits and four runs crossed the plate. Among these hits was the home run of Don Holden, son of the veteran "Cracky", one of the pitchers of the Poughkeepsie team's staff. Dutch Losee also hit for the circuit later in the contest.

The local team gathered 10 hits but one run came in. This score was made in the first inning, and the Rondouts hit plenty after that but they could not make them yield runs.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould,
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The biggest drawing card on any gridiron this fall, or for that matter in any other field of sport, will be Christian Keener Cagle of Louisiana and West Point.

The Army's All-America ball-toter puts the finishing touches to a dazzling career this season and likely will pack 'em in, from Boston to Palo Alto, as they haven't been packed since the days of that famous red-head, Grange, of Illinois.

Over the day-in-and-out campaign of baseball, Babe Ruth of course plays to far bigger crowds than any football hero, restricted to one performance a week in a season that lasts only about three months at the most but on the basis of drawing-power-per-game, Cagle is a bigger card than Ruth or anyone else in sport, at least for this year.

The Army captain, in his five main games last fall, furnished the main thrills for some 315,000 fans. This year, with West Point playing the most pretentious schedule of its history, Cagle's performances are likely to be the main attraction for upwards of 350,000, an average of 70,000 spectators for each of five games that will take place in Cambridge, New Haven, New York, Urbana and Palo Alto.

The biggest world's series turnout was 328,000, in 1926, when Babe Ruth and the Yankees dropped the final decision to the Cardinals, and it took seven games to roll up that total.

Jack Dempsey, in his five outstanding battles for the heavyweight championship, drew an aggregate turnout in excess of 500,000.

All of which seems to show that the big punch, the home run and the wild dash through a broken field make up a trio of the greatest "gate" attractions anywhere in the world of sport.

It was easier in baseball's pre-war days for a pitcher to collect 30 victories than it was for a slugger to bang out 30 home runs. It wasn't unusual for a Mathewson, Young, Alexander or Johnson to bag 30 triumphs on the mound in the old days, but it was not until 1920 that Babe Ruth began rocking the firmament with unprecedented totals of circuit blows.

Now, the situation is exactly reversed, with the 30-or-more home run hitter no novelty whatever but the 30-victories-or-over apparently an extinct accomplishment among the boxmen.

Half a dozen clouters have passed the 30 mark already in home runs and as many more may do so before the season closes.

Not since Sergeant Jim Bagby turned the trick for Cleveland in 1920 has any twirler registered 30 victories and the spell won't be broken this season. Grove of the Athletics and Grimes of the Pirates got good starts, each reaching the 15th victory around mid-season but they bogged down somewhat after that, for one reason or another.

The clouter, it seems, is making it tougher for the pitcher.

Most of the star performers in the amateur golf championship at Pebble Beach may be pardoned for thinking about "Black Wednesday" with some apprehension, for that's the day when the 32 survivors of the qualifying rounds start match play with two 18-hole rounds. Not since he won the title in 1926 has George Von Elm gotten by this particular day of nerve-wracking competition and the great Bobby Jones has had his closest calls in these opening tests.

Pan-Ams Beat Bushwicks Twice

The Pan-Ams defeated the Saugerties Bushwicks twice at that village. On Sunday they captured the game, 13 to 1, and won Monday's game, 4 to 3.

Sunday's game was a walkaway. The Pan-Ams started off with a bang, scoring ten runs in the first inning. This rally was sufficient to win the game for the Bushwicks only brought one run across the plate after that.

The Pan-Ams by their early hitting again got into a comfortable lead in their game Labor Day. They tallied twice in the first inning but the Bushwicks brought a run across now and then but another score in the fourth and sixth gave the local oil men the game.

Solemn Mack Stars Getting Gay; Lefty, Mickey, Al Chide Hugmen

Coming up for air after several Yankee walk the Chalk and are add

Philadelphia (AP).—"Jockeys," the boys in baseball who ride the opposition, usually are conspicuous by their absence on Connie Mack's ball clubs.

But now there is no restraining such great Athletic stars as Grove, Simmons and Cochrane when, in their hour of victory, they meet and conquer the Yankees before whom they had bowed in bitter campaigns of seasons of silent suffering, these front ing pointed chatter to prod them alo past seasons.

It would be inappropriate, perhaps unfair, to refer to these quiet, mild-mannered masters of the diamond as "jockeys".

Yet, nowadays, whenever they tangle with the dejected Hugmen there is considrable wisecracking coming from their sector and it takes but one look to notice that Messrs. Grove, Simmons and Cochrane are the key men in the pardonable persecution.

During 1926, 1927 and 1928 when the Athletics, a truly great team, fought gallantly but futilely against -line Athletic experts are making the ug.

the unbeatable Yankee machine, these three Philadelphia stars recognized no superiors in their own particular departments.

Grove was out there throwing that horsehide so fast that it whizzed up to the plate looking more like a pea than a baseball; Cochrane, besides catching a remarkable number of games, was hitting like a cleanup hitter should, and Big Al Simmons was pounding the ball at a dizzy clip.

Defeat was bitter then but it made victory that much sweeter now. And you ought to see these boys beam!

Dunlap Takes Lead With 69

Pebble Beach, Cal., Sept. 3 (AP).—The echoes of two booming rounds of golf rolled back from the mountains across Carmel Bay today as the battle of Pebble Beach, with the amateur championship of the United States at stake, surged into the final qualifying round.

The first big shot fired was a rousing 70, two under par, by the defending champion and top-heavy favorite of the whole field, Bobby Jones, in the first eighteen-hole test yesterday.

The reverberations of this had scarcely gone out to sea when along came a slim, curly-haired youth of 21, Gibson Dunlap of Los Angeles, with the game and the courage to post a sensational 69, thereby taking the lead from the king and establishing a new competitive record for one of the hardest of all championship courses.

This double-barreled opening day thrill was all that could be desired by even the most enthusiastic of nearly 10,000 California fans, cheering the start of the first National championship ever brought to the Pacific slope's rocky shores.

It paved the way for a stirring tussle in the final 18 holes of the qualifying competition today, the result of which will determine the 1929 medalist and decide the 32 low scorers among the starting field of 141 eligible for continuation at match play. The man-to-man competition begins Wednesday with two 18-hole rounds.

Ganung Stars At Auto Races Here Labor Day

Makes Fastest Time Circling the Track in 28 Seconds Flat—Seven Events Run Off—Good Crowd In Attendance.

Automobile races at the Kingston Driving Park Labor Day afternoon drew a fairly large crowd and the races were good. In all seven events were run off with a twenty lap free-for-all the feature of the afternoon. In that race as in the other events Charles Ganung driving a Miller car showed his superior skill and demonstrated that his car was the fastest on the track. Larry Beals was second only a few feet behind the winner. Beals was driving a Miller special which was used by the late Ray Keech in many of his dirt track races.

The afternoon's program opened with the usual qualifying trials. In these trials the drivers are introduced and then make one lap around the track for position. Ganung made the fastest time of the afternoon circling the track from a rolling start in 33 seconds flat. Beals was next in 34 seconds. Al Aspin driving another Miller came in third in 35 2-5 seconds while the other drivers trailed the leaders for a few seconds.

In the second event a ten lap event for the six cars making the best time in the time trials Ganung won in 5:52 seconds. Beals in No. 2 was second and Al Aspin was third. Other entries were Dick Campbell in 28, Roland Ward in 21 and Dave Evans in 16. Evans is one of the old time dirt track racers but his car was not speedy enough to keep up the pace set by Ganung. Aspin's Miller special was not as fast as the one he drove last year in the races held here but Al kept up in the lead and provided some competition.

Elimination Events.

The next three races were elimination events in which three drivers participated according to the time made on the time trials. In each event the first two drivers to finish were qualified to run in the twenty lap free-for-all. In the first one of the elimination races Ganung, Aspin and Walton True fought it out for the six laps and finished in that order. Ganung making the distance in 3:38 2-5 seconds for the best time of the afternoon. In the second elimination event Beals, Roland Ward and Johnny Cacace started but Cacace was compelled to drop out with motor trouble and after trailing for a great part of the distance Ward came in first when he passed Beals on the upper turn as Beals made a wide turn and Ward held to the fence. The time was 3:55. In the last of the elimination events came the real thrill of the afternoon and one not scheduled. As Dave Evans and Joe Shepard came tearing down the home stretch with Shepard leading he glanced back to get Evans' location and for a moment lost control of his car. The car cut over to the outside of the track and missed the fence in front of the grandstand by a matter of inches. As the car cut through the grass along the fence the crowd was on its feet but expert handling of the wheel saved Shepard from a crash. However, he slowed down sufficient to permit Evans to again take the lead. The affair took place after Shepard had passed Evans on the upper turn after trailing for some distance. Later it was announced a broken oil line had put Shepard out. True came in third in the event. The time was 3:48 1-5 seconds.

In the ten mile free-for-all there were six starters. Ganung, Aspin, Beals, Ward, Evans and Shepard having all qualified, but before the race started Ward withdrew on account of a broken oil line. That left the race up to four cars and Ganung and Beals fought it out with first one and then the other in the lead. Ganung finished first in 11:58 3-5 seconds with Beals close behind and Aspin third. Evans came in fourth.

The last event was consolation event for drivers who had not placed in any of the day's events. There were but two starters, Cacace and True. Cacace came in first and True second in the 5-mile event.

The warm weather brought out a good sized crowd and while the drivers raced and the crowd sweltered an aeroplane hovered overhead and viewed the races from a cool and comfortable position.

Philosophy

Let not another's disobedience to nature become an ill to you; for you were not born to be depressed, and unhappy with others, but to be happy with them. And if any is unhappy remember that he is so for himself; for God made all men to enjoy felicity and peace.—Epictetus (Circa 60 A. D.)

Major League Parks

In the present home run era, the distance from the home plate to "over the fence" offers some interesting information for the benefit of the fans. As right field in most of the parks are the shortest and where most of the "circuit drives" are made, we give dimensions from the plate to the right field barrier:

National league: — Chicago, 318 ft.; New York, 257 ft.; Cincinnati, 383 ft.; Brooklyn, 301 ft.; Boston, 297 ft.; Philadelphia, 280 ft.; St. Louis, 320 ft.; Pittsburgh, 300 ft.

American league:—Philadelphia, 307 ft.; Cleveland, 290 ft.; New York, 294 ft., 9 in.; Detroit, 370 ft., 11 in.; Chicago, 365 ft.; Boston, 358 ft., 6 in.; St. Louis, 320 ft.; Washington, 428 ft.

"Whispering Bill" Has Had Many Good Chances

Another recent White Sox "playboy" who recently returned to Comiskey park in a gray uniform, none other than "Whispering Bill" Barrett. Barrett was with the White Sox for many years. Possessor of much natural talent, he consistently threatened to break into stardom, only to miss the mark each season.

In fact, he became known as the "most permanent prospect" the White Sox picked up in years—permanently promising.

Early this season he was traded to the Boston Red Sox for Doug Taitt. When he left he emulated his roommate, Bib Falk, by promising to "hit a million" with his new club and make much misery for the Sox.

So far the promise has been nothing but that—he still seems to be a "prospect."

Bill Barrett.

Barrett long has been known as one of the prize "bench jockeys" in baseball, and paired with Falk was classed as the greatest team of goat-getters in the league.

Unlike Falk, Bill didn't show the unusually keen sense of humor that the Texan did, but his shrill war cry sweeping across the field was very much a part of White Sox atmosphere wherever the team traveled.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HERBERT W. BARKER,
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If there existed any reasonable doubts about either major league pennant race, the Labor Day double-header baseball feast seems to have dispelled them.

Victory in both ends of yesterday's double bill with the Yankees enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to lengthen their American League advantage to 13½ games. Simultaneously the Chicago Cubs widened the gap separating them from second place Pittsburgh to 12½ games by twice trouncing St. Louis.

The A's beat the Yanks by 10 to 3 and 6 to 5. Old Jack Quinn kept 11 Yankee hits well scattered in the opener while the league leaders were driving George Pipgras to the showers with a six-run rally in the third inning. Home runs by Simmons and Dykes helped roll up the topheavy score. The Yankees appeared to have the second game won, 5-4, until the ninth when three hits and Lary's error gave the A's two runs and the game. Previously Ruth and company had shelled Rube Walberg from the box with four runs in the sixth but they could do nothing with Howard Ehmke.

The Cleveland Indians moved into third place by downing St. Louis, 2 to 1 and 9 to 5. Walter Miller gave up only seven hits in outpitching Sammy Gray in the opener. Willis Hudlin was less ineffective than Alvin Crowder and Dick Coffman in the nightcap and never really was in trouble after the Indians had gained a 8-2 lead at the end of the first six innings.

Six runs in the last two innings gave Detroit a 10-8 victory over Chicago in the first game of a double bill but the White Sox easily took the nightcap, 8 to 2, behind Ted Lyons's fine pitching.

The Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox split even, Washington taking the first game, 10 to 7, and Boston the second, 7 to 2. Joe Cronin, Senator shortstop, hit a single, two doubles, a triple and a home run in five trips to the plate in the first game. Gaston held the Senators to seven hits in the afterpiece.

The Cubs won two slugging affrays with the Cardinals, 11-7 and 12-10. All told the Cubs pounded five Cardinal pitchers for 36 hits including eight doubles and three home runs. The Cards were not far behind with 32 hits off three Cub pitchers, including eight doubles, one triple and two home runs. Rogers Hornsby hit for the circuit in each game to bring his season's total to 32. Hack Wilson got his 35th homer in the opener.

Pittsburgh dropped the first game to Cincinnati, 7 to 5, but won the second in 13 innings, 9 to 8. The first game saw the Reds outslug the Corsairs in the first six innings, Jakie May, relieving Luque in the fifth, holding the Pirates helpless the rest of the way. In the nightcap Swetonic's single, a sacrifice by Barnell and Lloyd Waner's single gave the Pirates the winning run in the 13th inning.

The Giants swamped the Phillies, 11 to 4, in the first game but were nosed out, 4 to 3, in the second. The first game was decided as early as the fourth inning when the Giants drove Claude Willoughby out of the box with a seven-run rally. In the second game, Don Hurst's single in the 12th sent Klein home with the winning run. Mel Ott hit his 24th and 25th homers of the year during the day and Klein made it No. 37 in the first game.

Ray Moss and William Watson Clark gave the Boston Braves only ten hits in two games and Brooklyn took both ends of a bargain bill, 6 to 2 and 10-0. Moss, allowing eight hits, outpitched Ed Brandt in the opener and was aided by some timely Robin hitting. Clark gave up only two hits in the nightcap while the Robins were hitting Jones and Peery hard. Johnny Frederick hit his 46th and 47th doubles and needs only three more to tie Paul Waner's modern National League record of 59.

Fast Flyweights Will Top Card At Fair Grounds

Two fast flyweights, Black Bill and Routier Parra will meet in the main 10-round go at the Kingston Fair Grounds Friday night. This is a return bout between these boxers. Black Bill has fought and defeated a number of highly rated contenders for the flyweight crown in New York city.

Not long ago these boys fought in New Jersey and put on one of the best bouts ever held there. Black Bill has a splendid reputation based on the fact that he has defeated Izzy Schwartz three times. His opponent, Parra from Chile has fought Schwartz but the decision was awarded to the latter after 15 rounds of fighting.

One of the six rounders will bring together Eddie Belson of Newburgh and Frank Goosby of California. Goosby fought here a short time ago and pleased the fans, so, Bill Singer has booked him again.

Augie Baglico of Brooklyn and Vid Morosco of New York will meet in a six rounder and Al Felder of New York will mix it up with Tony Ahrudia also of New York. The other bouts will be announced later.

Chicago Fans Are Loyal to the Cubs

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP)—Blowing four out of five games in their last series at Pittsburgh only enhanced the popularity of the Cubs at home, if attendance figures mean anything.

More than 125,000 fans milled and perspired in Wrigley Field Sunday and Monday while the Cubs were taking three straight from the Cardinals. And they came to cheer the team that had dropped four out of five games to its nearest rival for the National League leadership.

Yesterday's morning game attracted 38,000 fans, an unusual number for a before lunch contest. The afternoon tilt drew nearly 45,000 and Sunday's game was witnessed by 46,000.

At the rate they are packing their home park the Cubs will surpass by a wide margin the National League season attendance record of more than 1,200,000 set by the Cubs of 1927.

Slips in Reading And Writing

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 3 (AP).—The man who writes "framing" when he means "farming" probably is exposing a stunted trait of left-handedness. Or it may be "left-eyedness" which for the moment deprives his normal right-handedness.

These explanations of the familiar slips of reading and writing were given to the Ninth International Congress of Psychology today by Dr. W. F. Dearborn of Harvard University. He defined the cause as "ambidexterity" and said that in many instances it is due to improper muscular balance of the eyes. The words are seen wrong in the first place, and in extreme cases may be remembered wrong by children, thus accounting for one of the difficulties in learning to spell.

Worse still is a complication of "left-handedness which causes some children to reverse the spelling of whole words, so as to write "not" for "ton." This condition, said Dr. Dearborn, "is primarily associated with left-handedness and left-eyedness. Silent reading methods, replacing old fashioned oral reading exercises, aggravate this double left difficulty."

Books were found to be the leading cause of prejudices against alien races formed by Welsh school children, according to a study reported by George H. Green of the University of Wales.

He said that books outweighed either school or religious training as formers of prejudices.

Madame Emile Hovelaque Dead

Montfermeil, France, Sept. 3 (AP).—Madame Emile Hovelaque, the former Josephine Higgins, daughter of former Governor Frank W. Higgins of New York, is dead.

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—Madame Emile Hovelaque, the former Josephine Higgins, who died at Montfermeil, France, was the only daughter of the late Frank W. Higgins, governor of New York from 1905 to 1907.

She married Emile Hovelaque at Olean, N. Y., in 1911 after a romance which started in 1909 while both were members of a touring party in Northern Africa. Her husband, a chevalier of the Legion of Honor, at that time was inspector general of public works in France.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT THE COWS

"Moo, moo, moo" said Mrs. Cow, "no one has asked me for my opinions of late, but I think I shall tell some of them, just the same.

"In fact, no one has asked me my opinions at all, either of late or before."

"Don't let it discourage you," said Miss Cow, "moo, moo, don't let it do that."

"I'm glad you don't think I should be discouraged, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Well, what are your opinions, Mrs. Cow?"

The cows were all out in the pasture, for the spring had come and they were enjoying the nice days.

Some of the cows had wandered far up in the pasture near the woods, but Mrs. Cow and Miss Cow were down by the fence, near the farmhouse.

"In the first place," said Mrs. Cow, "I think it is absurd the way people have picnics. I mean, particularly, the people who travel in automobiles.

"You know, Miss Cow, they have got so into the habit of hurrying that they eat in a hurry, too.

"Really, I wouldn't be in the least surprised to see them toot horns at each other before long to hurry each other up.

"They come along here. They put their lunch basket down. They begin to eat.

"If anyone eats slowly, some one in the party fusses and fumes and says:

"'Come on now, we can't sit here all day, you know. We've got to be getting on. We've a long distance to make yet.

"And the person who has been taking a little longer smiles down a few more bites and then patiently says:

"'I'm all through.'

"The one who has been hurrying, then says:

"'Are you sure you're all through? I don't want to hurry you, you know.'

"And the person says, 'Yes, I'm through,' in a sad voice.

"Then they're off in a cloud of dust, as the saying is.

"I just can't understand it. Why don't they sit awhile and talk and chew? Or if they haven't anything to talk about, why don't they just chew?

"They'd digest their food better. They'd feel more amiable and pleasant.

"I often think the reason we're so even-tempered is because we chew so contentedly.

"But really, Miss Cow, I wouldn't be surprised, with the way they're getting to hurry more and more, to find people before long bringing special automobile horns to picnics and to hear them toot and say:

"'Hurry, hurry, toot, toot, we've no time to waste, toot, toot, we've got to be on our way, toot, toot, we've a lot of mileage to make yet, toot, toot.

"'We don't want to get there when it's dark, toot, toot.

"'We've got to be ahead of time in case we have any tire punctures, toot, toot. You've eaten enough, toot, toot.'

"I wouldn't be in the least surprised if it came to that.

"And I'm of the opinion that this is no way to enjoy life or motoring or having a picnic.

"They're in such a rush they don't have a good time. They're always fussing about getting on further.

"Ah, no, Mrs. Cow doesn't approve of it. I also think it would be a good idea if every once in a while they stopped and got out and gazed at the scenery around.

"I don't approve of this rushing so fast they don't enjoy anything. I can see from their faces they don't enjoy themselves.

"And it's my opinion that they will wear themselves out rushing.

"Yes, Mrs. Cow has opinions, and she thinks they're good ones. Probably that's what every one thinks of her own opinions, moo, moo."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"PELL-MELL"

TO DO something pell-mell is to do it in indiscriminate haste and confusion. The expression is commonly used in every day speech, but the person is rare who understands the allusion with the knowledge of how it started.

The expression comes to us from the old English game of pall mall or pall mall, which was introduced during the reign of Charles I, and subsequently became very popular in England. A game in which a ball was driven with a mallet, and taking its name from the Italian "palla maglio," palla meaning ball and "maglio" hammer. In quick pronunciation pall mall became "pell mell" and it was from the fact that under certain circumstances in the game, the players would rush headlong at the ball that such heedless, hasty activity came to be described as "pell-mell." And though the game which brought it into existence has served its time and passed out of the picture, the expression "pell-mell" has survived in modern speech.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LOSE INTEREST

WE GET interested, but we don't stay interested. We lose interest either temporarily or permanently, taking on new interests and casting them off as wornout clothes. Some interests hold us longer than others.

The reasons for losing interest are fatigue and saturation. We lose interest because we become tired in body and mind and cannot hold our attention on the interest. As much as children love to hear stories, they sometimes get so tired that they lose interest and fall asleep.

True fatigue causes the loss of interest in the economy of health. It is also true that loss of interest due to being fed up on the thing causes false fatigue. Often we think we are terribly tired when in reality we are merely disinterested. We are tired of the thing we are doing and assume that the whole body is tired. We say, "that makes me tired," or "he makes me tired," when we mean that the thing or person referred to does not interest us.

Some interests we lose permanently because our tastes are changing. We grow away from the thing that once held us firmly. Darwin, for example, testifies that after thirty years of research in animal and plant specimens in support of his famous theory of evolution he suddenly discovered that he had lost his interest in literature.

Here is a curious thing in the matter of losing interest. We lose interest if we overindulge in a thing and get fed up and tired if not actually disgusted. On the other hand, we also lose interest if we neglect the thing so that it dies of disuse. To keep up an interest in anything, it seems necessary to indulge moderately and at rather frequent intervals.

Aurora Borealis

There is a discussion on concerning the noise which some persons claim to have heard accompanying the demonstrations of the Aurora Borealis in the northern skies. It has been described as a crisp monotone, like the passage of sleigh runners over the crisp snow. Some explorers claim to have heard this noise, but they state that it was heard under the most favorable circumstances, and, on the other hand, there are other persons who have had the opportunities who say the flashes are absolutely silent. Another description of this sound is that it was like the swishing of a whip or that of a squall through the rigging of a vessel.

Ancient Classic

The Diamond Classics were a reprint in a very small type of some of the earlier publications, such as Chaucer, Johnson and Shakespeare, and came into existence between 1820 and 1830. Whittingham of Chiswick had such type.

MANCHURIA

Bridge of Chinese Eastern Railway Over the Sungari.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

MANCHURIA, whose important east-west railway, the Chinese Eastern, has been the bone of contention between China and Russia, is an empire in itself. The state of Texas along with New York and Pennsylvania might be fitted into Manchuria and still leave enough room for New Jersey. In this domain of vast size is a mixed population of Chinese, Koreans, Japanese and Russians which numbers between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000. So near to China's swarming deltas and Japan's overcrowded islands, it is still a land of great open spaces. This is a significant fact in Manchuria politics. For a while Japan and China competed by sending in streams of immigrants; but in late years the Chinese stream has become dominant owing to its lower scale of living.

This northern dependency of China is shaped like a giant jaw tooth whose roots touch the Great Wall where it reaches the sea and whose crown forms the south bank of the Amur river. This tooth is the wedge which separates Russia and Mongolia on the one side and Japanese Korea and the narrow strip of Russian territory along the Sea of Japan on the other. It is a land where empires meet, and, having met, build railroads.

Manchuria is better served in the matter of railway lines than any other part of China. After the treaty of Portsmouth, which ended the Russo-Japanese war, the railways were divided. Japan took over matters in the root of the tooth and Russia those in the crown. So it stood until a few weeks ago when the Chinese ousted Russian railway officials and seized the line. Japan still maintains her own rights in the leased territory surrounding Port Arthur and Dairen and along the railway concession running north almost to Harbin.

Dairen, Manchuria's chief seaport, has been largely Japanese built and resembles other cities of Japan except that it is worked out on a more modern and magnificent scale. Its docks and harbor equipment are comparable with the great seaports of the world.

Harbin, the metropolis of the north, is purely Russian. It lies on the banks of the Sungari river at the point of change from trans-Siberian trains to the southern connections with Peiping and Tokyo. Harbin now shelters great numbers of exiles from the old regime in Russia.

Mukden the Focal Point.

Mukden, the provincial capital, lies in the plains of central Manchuria and is the focal point of three empires. Here the Chinese and Japanese and Europeans each have their distinct cities, three in one. Modern Japanese business and residential blocks surround the railway station where the traveler from Chosen (Korea) or Peiping alights. A disreputable vehicle with lines reminiscent of old Russia bears the tourist through a straggling European quarter to the gates of the high-walled Chinese city two miles away. Japanese, Russians and Chinese meet but do not mingle.

The Japanese quarter is a splendid example of colonial efficiency. Streets are straight, broad and hard paved. Bazaars are filled with the latest products from Japanese farms and factories—luscious yellow persimmons, dainty tea sets, and gorgeous flowered cotton kimono cloth done up in one-garment bolts. There are hospitals, schools and police stations, electric lighted and presided over by the latest products of the imperial educational system. Over the railway station is an excellent European style hotel, complete with brass beds and tile baths.

A short drive in the rickety Russian droskie and all is changed. The air grows heavier with strange odors. Gray brick Russian houses straggle along a bumpy road bordered by open drains, with millet and sweet potato fields stretching beyond. Occasional recently built Chinese structures give the appearance of new patches on an ancient garment.

This is the so-called international settlement and is well named. Wretched looking white Russian refugees abound. Korean women smoke their pipes in half-open doorways. Occasionally European consular compounds form islands of respectability; the American consulate, occupying a series of large and gaudy temple buildings, being particularly imposing, while a stately Georgian structure upholds the dignity of Great Britain.

Suddenly the carriage winds through a towered and tortuously curved gateway in the wall of the Chinese city. Uneasy smells increase into a distinct malodorous certainty. One-storied gray brick, gray tiled houses line a deeply rutted roadway. Blue cotton clothes are worn with the monotony of uniforms. Cheerful, unwashed yellow faces flow past in continuous streams. Perpetual and strident bargaining fills the air. Coal balls, sweet cakes, fly swatters and boiling tea water are hawked with shrill cries and ringing bells.

Given Up to Trade.

Such is the ancient Manchu capital from which the dynastic throne was moved to Peiping in the Seventeenth century, after the Manchu conquest of China. The huge palace of the successors of Genghis Khan still dominates the city with its gaudy emptiness, and tombs of Manchu rulers with columned halls and curving eves brood in lonely magnificence in forests outside the city walls.

These few heirlooms from a historic past lie like soiled jewels in the mud-colored monotony of a dirty commercial city. Modern Mukden is wholly absorbed in trade. Lying in the center of a rich agricultural plain, it forms the meeting point of two great railway systems. One, running east and west, connects Tokyo and Chosen (Korea) with Peiping; the other north and south joins Port Arthur and Dairen to the Trans-Siberian railway. A monument to its commercial importance as well as to fallen soldiers is the modest war memorial of the Japanese heroes who fell in the historic battle of Mukden during the Russo-Japanese war.

Although in the same latitude as Chicago and Boston, Mukden has a rather severe climate of the so-called "continental" type. Winters are long and cold; summers short but torrid. The hot season, however, ripens surrounding miles of beans and giant sorghum, making Mukden the bean cake and bean oil market as well as the alcohol distilling center of North China. Cold winters bring a season of intense activity in the fur market. Buyers from the New York fur houses bargain with traders from the North for all sizes and grades of skins from dog to marten and from Siberian squirrel to Manchurian tiger.

Surrounding coal mines furnish abundant supplies for a bustling railway center. On the other hand water is comparatively scarce for a large part of the year. The relative disproportion between these two elements is probably responsible for the grimy complexion of Manchuria's somber but seething capital.

Land of the Soy Bean.

Manchuria, like new England, is the land of the bean, this time the soy bean. Beans, bean oil, and bean cake, or leavings from the oil presses, are chief exports.

The soy bean's rise from obscurity, only 20 years ago, to its present importance, is a wonder of modern commerce. Today its products, manufactured by the wholesale at Mukden, are shipped all over the world. Not only does the soy bean provide a sauce which is the worcestershire of China, but it also masquerades as cheese, candy, fertilizer, flour, and oil for lighting and lubricating.

The Japanese use it widely as the basis of confectionery. In this form it is highly palatable and the Japanese consider their candies and pastries more wholesome than ours—indeed they are appalled by the quantity of sugar which Americans consume.

Dairen, just north of Port Arthur, on the Liaotung peninsula, exported in one year nearly 150,000 tons of bean oil, and most of this came direct to the United States. Many of the ultimate consumers thereof probably were no more aware that soy bean oil was the basis of a delicious mayonnaise dressing than that hair-seal oil was an important ingredient of the bonbons they ate after dinner.

The region generally referred to as Manchuria really comprises three provinces of China, which are Tsitsikhar, Kirin and Liaotung. The latter, which also is known as Shing-King or Fengtien, is the most southerly and gives its name to the peninsula where Port Arthur and the Japanese reservation are located. It was here that the encroachments of Russia, in 1903, brought on her war with Japan.

Chinese in Manchuria are, as a rule, not native sons. They have immigrated hither from all parts of China, driven from their homes by war and famine. The recent shortage of food and political turmoil in Shantung have sent millions of farmers and laborers from that province alone.

Detroit Radio Beauty, 8, Tries For Honor At Show

Dolly Hobson of WMBC, Detroit, aged 8, youngest entrant in the radio artist beauty contest.

Detroit, Mich., (AP).—Dolly Hobson, entertainer at WMBC, is only eight years old, yet she is considered a radio beauty.

At WMBC, her classification is so high that she has been entered as the youngest contender to date in the radio artist beauty contest being held in connection with the annual radio world's fair in New York.

Dolly's radio experience first began two years ago when she was "discovered" by WMBC. Since then the station has presented her in regular programs. She has taken an active part in such ceremonies as the inauguration of the governor of Michigan, American Legion functions, the national conclave of the Knights Templar and the annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose.

She was born in Johannesburg, South Africa, coming to America when a year old.

Fought Quicksand For Nine Hours

Camden, Tenn., Sept. 3 (AP).—E. A. Fry, 23-year-old old Camden pharmacist, was alive today, thanks to the valiant efforts of several hundred men who fought a nine-hour battle in relays against a quicksand bed by the dim light of flares and electric torches deep in a cavern in the Tennessee hills yesterday.

Fry was one of a fishing party of six which decided to explore Baugus Cave, 30 miles from here.

Nearly a quarter of a mile back in the hill from the entrance to the cave Fry stepped into a quicksand trap. He sank immediately to his hips. His five companions strove unavailingly to extricate him while he sank deeper.

When the apparently doomed youth sank to his shoulders some of his would-be rescuers went for help while the others remained and carried on the battle.

The alarm brought a crowd of 3,000 to the cave mouth, from which volunteers took the places of workers exhausted by their efforts inside the cave. Finally Fry was pulled free with the aid of ropes and boards.

Physicians here pronounced the pharmacist in a serious condition from exhaustion.

Only a few things fall without breaking. When night falls only laws are broken.

ESKIMO BOYS FLEE TO ESCAPE DISEASE

Ends Experiment With White Civilization.

Toronto.—Ben and Sam, two Eskimo boys on whom the hopes of their race had been pinned in an experiment with the civilization of the white man, are fleeing for their lives back to the safety of the Arctic wastes. Not from the roar of the cities are they fleeing, nor from the white man's learning, but from a mightier agency—disease. The experiment has failed.

Two years ago an Eskimo chieftain, far up in the silent Arctic, asked the head of the missionaries to send his son to the unknown lands to the south to learn the ways of the white man. "My people haven't a chance unless they are able to meet the white man on his own ground," he said.

Attend White Man's School.

And so nine-year-old Ben, son of Chief John Ell, head of the Southampton island Eskimos, accompanied by his friend of the same age, Sam Pudbutt, of Lake Harbor, Baffin Land, were handed over to the headmaster of the Lakefield Preparatory school, near Peterboro. They had been brought down from the North by Rev. F. H. Gibbs, a returning missionary.

"It is of the utmost importance that these boys should be considered in every way on the basis of white men," were the instructions of Venerable A. L. Fleming, archdeacon of the Arctic.

Ben and Sam knew no English, but they were good-natured, good sports and intelligent. They were unanimously acclaimed as general favorites by their new white playmates.

But Ben and Sam were forced to relinquish their studies to face an ordeal of sickness, from which they barely escaped with their lives. After influenza they took pneumonia, measles, tonsilitis and underwent operations for mastoids and adenoids.

It had been pronounced that for them to remain here means only one thing—death.

Sail for Arctic Wastes.

So Ben and Sam sailed from Montreal on a Hudson Bay company's icebreaker, the Nascopie. They will be taken back by returning missionaries. They do not want to go back to the land of the midnight sun, and the reason they expressed was just "Baffin' Land too code."

"This experiment has been thoroughly satisfactory from one point of view," declared Ven. A. L. Fleming, who bore the responsibility and expense of the enterprise. "It has shown that the Eskimo is in no way inferior to the white man."

The archdeacon said the Eskimo was an intelligent but undeveloped race. The way Ben and Sam picked up the white man's language and customs in such a short time was remarkable. "I wish white men could learn Eskimo as quickly as these two picked up English," said the archdeacon.

Surgeon Gives His Own Blood to Save Friend

St. Paul.—The story of how a surgeon performed an emergency operation on an old friend, gave the patient a transfusion of his own blood and then hurried away to perform another operation was revealed here by attendants of a St. Paul hospital.

The patient, J. M. Riegel, widely-known northwest newspaper man, underwent an operation for the removal of a kidney. As he lay on the operating table it was seen that he needed a transfusion; both a nurse and an anesthetist, promptly gave some of their blood.

Reigel was taken to his room where his condition was found to be growing steadily weaker. Close friends and relatives of the patient gathered at the door, eager to give him some of their blood.

But with only moments to spare the physician, whose name was not revealed, refused to take the time necessary for tests, but bared his own arm and gave the patient some of his own blood.

The surgeon then hurried back to the operating room to complete the day's work, which included another major operation. Shortly after the transfusion Reigel began a steady improvement.

Find Cache of Tear Gas Buried in Berlin Suburb

Berlin.—Residents of the fashionable west end suburb of Wilmersdorf were thrown into a panic last night when an extensive cache of poison gas was discovered in the heart of their district, buried only a few inches under the surface of the streets.

Workers found layers of small glass bottles under the surface. Not knowing the contents, they broke a few. Several were so severely poisoned they were taken to hospitals.

The police discovered the cache was located on the site of a war-time tear-gas factory and that 100,000 bottles of the gas were buried there when the production of the poison was abandoned.

Lightning Empties Well

Queen of the Fishing Fleet

Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 3 (AP).—A fisherman who virtually retired from the sea 15 years ago, today had the satisfaction of seeing the craft he skippered yesterday acclaimed the Queen of the North Atlantic fishing fleet.

He was Manuel P. Dominos, and the schooner he sailed in competition with three other Gloucestermen was the Progress, lightest of the four. Although it had been planned originally to make the championship award on the basis of two victories in the series, the fact that the first two attempts to run the race to a finish on Saturday and Sunday were thwarted because of light winds decided the contestants against another try. All were anxious to be off for the fishing grounds without further delay.

In consequence the Progress was awarded the Prentiss Cup and $1,500, with $650 divided among the crew. The Arthur D. Story, Captain Ben Pine, took second prize of $1,000 and $550 for the crew; The Elsie, Captain Norman Ross, third prize of $500 with $450 for the crew and the crew of the Thomas S. Gorton, Captain Wallace Parsons, were given $250.

The Progress's time for the 37.5-S nautical mile course was five hours, 39 minutes and 53 seconds, considered excellent in view of the light and variable wind. She finished a mile and five lengths ahead of The Story.

Odd Powers Attributed to Gems in Ages Past

While in modern times the value of jewels depends on their use as ornaments and their employment in certain optical and other instruments, the ancients attached a far different significance to them. In their minds gems were endowed with gifts of spiritual and material power and were credited with the ability to cure diseases, avert trouble and drive away the demons which harassed the imaginations of people of early and medieval times. This conception gave rise to he wearing of amulets, the presiding genius of one's fate being easily carried about in the form of a precious stone.

These ideas, now so ridiculous to us, had their origin in the philosophy of India and are related to the belief in the transmigration of the soul. It was believed that the soul which, at death, had not reached a state of absolute purity, had to undergo various transmigrations until it became purified, and that consequently it entered into plants, animals and even mineral bodies in the process. Therefore gems were considered living beings. Being of incomparable physical purity, they were regarded as the highest expression of natural perfection, and hence opposed to possess talismanic and other powerful properties.—Exchange.

Ancient Myth

The Pillars of Hercules are two hills on opposite sides of the straits of Gibraltar, so called because of the myth that they had been torn asunder by Hercules to admit the flow of the ocean into the Mediterranean.

Sun and Tape 'Brand' Bathers in Virginia

Richmond, Va.—The vogue for suntan here has brought the "brand." A "brand" is easily acquired with a few strips of adhesive tape and an afternoon at the swimming pool.

It consists of shaping the desired design or initials from the tape, applying them to the skin and stepping into the sunshine. The space covered by the tape remains white and is easily seen when the tape is removed. Greek letter fraternity "brands" appear to be the most popular.

Mortgages and Deeds Filed

During the month of August there were filed for record in the office of the Ulster county clerk, transfers of realty being deeds, leases, extensification of wills, rights of way etc., to the number of 254. This is 64 more than during August, 1928 when the total was 190. There were mortgages filed during August against 267 filed during August, 1928.

HOW

TRAFFIC IN HUMAN HAIR HAS BECOME IMPORTANT.—

"Thus human hair is seen to enter importantly, as an economic factor, into practically all the food we eat." This curious and vaguely alarming statement, says the Detroit News, was made by a witness in tariff hearings before the ways and means committee. The witness was a manufacturer of "press cloth," who wanted the duty removed from human hair, and he told of an interesting industrial romance.

Press cloth, it appears, is used to make the bag in which cotton-seed, coconuts, olives cocoa beans, etc., are placed when they are squeezed in hydraulic presses to remove their content of edible oil. Prior to the war, it was believed that camel's hair was the only fiber that would withstand the heat and pressure to which press cloth is subjected in this process. But the World war, with accompanying disturbances in Siberia, cut off the supply of camel's hair and forced a search for a substitute. Then it was found that human hair not only served the purpose, but was even better than that of the camel. The supply of it comes from the queues of the Chinese and from the prolific scalps of the women of Sicily. It brings about 30 cents a pound in this country.

How Condition of Bees Is Revealed to Keeper

The breath of a bee, important because of its indication of the health of the insect in winter and of the efficiency of the sweet-producing hive in summer, was recently measured by Prof. C. H. Vansell of the University of California. To do this he conducted the air coming from the hive through a tube into bulbs containing absorbent chemicals. Allowing for the natural carbon dioxide and water of the outside air, he weighed these bulbs, getting an analysis of the breath of the hive by the amount of water vapor and carbon dioxide the chemicals had picked up.

He found that in winter when the bees were inactive the average hourly water loss from the entire hive was thirty-six millionths of an ounce. In summer when the insects were hard at work making honey and gathering nectar the water loss was twenty-five times as great. The carbon dioxide output, however, did not even double in summer.

How Rain Is Carried Off

What becomes of all the rain water and melted snow that visits our land each year? Meteorologists answer this by saying that of a 44 inch water fall, 21 inches flows out of basins through streams; 23 inches of it is returned to the atmosphere by the invisible processes of evaporation from the soil, water surfaces and surface objects and from being drawn up by the roots of plants and given off through their leaves. Of the 21 inches carried away by streams, 12 inches never gets into the ground but immediately runs off. About 8 inches of river water first finds its way underground and reappears in springs and seeps.

How Flies Multiply

It is estimated that there can be more than 8,000,000,000 descendants from a single housefly in one season. Though a good layer among the fly kind will lay 120 eggs at a time, this estimate does not count them all as hatched, but is based on only ten of the lot developing. If it were not for the fact that the great majority of the flies hatched are eaten up by their natural enemies or otherwise destroyed, they would soon completely cover the earth.

How to Clean Clock

If you have a clock that will not go because it wants cleaning, get a small piece of sponge, soak it in paraffin and place it at the bottom of the works, but not on the works. The fumes rise and do the cleaning. Clocks that have not worked for years often go well after this treatment.

How Pythons Are Hatched

A python's eggs are about the same size as those of a hen. After laying about a hundred, the female coils herself round them and remains thus until the young are hatched. This takes two months, during which time the snake fasts.

How Glacier Moves

The general belief that a glacier moves slowly and smoothly down a mountainside has been shattered. Investigations covering 17 years have shown that ice fields move forward with spasmodic jerks as stress accumulates.

How Plate Glass Is Made

Molten glass is poured out onto an iron table and rolled until reduced to the desired thickness. After cooling the glass is polished and finally annealed.

How to Keep Flowers Fresh

A pinch of bicarbonate of soda added to the water in which cut flowers are placed will do much to keep them fresh.

Mechanical Eye Pierces Darkness and Fog Easily

The terror darkness has held for man may be dissipated by this sneuted instrument that sees in the dark or fog. It is the invention of J. L. Baird a British television expert, who is demonstrating it.

Boxhill, England (AP).—The black curtain that descends at nightfall to obscure objects soon may be penetrated, if a mechanical eye invented by John L. Baird performs to expectations.

Darkness or fog may be penetrated by the noctovisor, which "sees" in the dark.

Aided by its visionary powers, ocean liners might plow at full speed through the blackest fog in perfect security; motorists could speed along highways with no fear of collision, and objects behind ebonite windows could be seen clearly.

As explained by the inventor, who recently gave a demonstration of the noctovisor's uncanny powers of vision, it is the application of invisible infra-red rays to television. The device in reality is a television transmitter coupled to a television receiver and so designed as to operate with invisible infrared rays.

The lens of the noctovisor, which looks like a big camera, casts an invisible image in infra-red light upon the exploring disk of a transmitting televisor. The receiving apparatus in the same box catches this image and reproduces it simultaneously in visible light.

In the demonstration, an automobile headlight on a car three miles away was hidden behind a sheet of ebonite which made it invisible to the naked eye. Nevertheless the noctovisor located it easily. Baird explained that the device, being sensitive to the infra-red rays, could detect the light even though shielded by ebonite.

The invisible rays penetrate ebonite, fog and other substances wholly or partially impervious to visible light rays and are balked only by wood.

Maritime commerce has shown interest and arrangements have been made to try out the device on a British ocean liner. Military applications also have been suggested, if further tests support early experiments.

Rondout Yacht Club Events

An afternoon of excitement coupled with pleasure was had by members of the Rondout Yacht Club and invited guests at the clubhouse Labor Day afternoon and the day's festivities closed with a very popular dance in the evening.

The first event of the afternoon was a race between Charles A. Warren in his Hacker-Craft boat and Martin Hagenlocker in Mr. Warren's outboard racer, Mr. Hagenlocker winning by a very small margin.

Next was a brush between C. B. Glunt, driving his Gar Wood boat and the Hacker-Craft, driven by Mr. Warren. This race was a very pretty one and extremely close, Mr. Warren winning by a couple boat lengths.

Exhibitions in fancy diving were given by Louis Weber, Miss Alice McLaughlin, James Winters, John Reel and others.

Mr. Warren and Mr. Glunt in their respective boats, with surf boards attached, then took several of the members for a ride and spills were very common.

There were six canoes entered in the canoe race for men, two men to a boat, using single paddles. The race was over a course of approximately a mile. This race was won by Vivian Brenn and Harold A. Styles; second, Raymond Davis and Raymond Cashin; third, Harold Davis and James Porteous; fourth, Leo Fitzgerald and Newton Tyler; fifth, James Winters and Louis Weber; sixth, Jack Reel and "Buster" Cashin.

Next in order was the canoe tilting contest. This proved to be the funniest event of the day and kept the spectators in constant laughter. Those participating in this event were Martin Hagenlocker, Louis Weber, LeRoy Gill, James Winters, John Reel, Miss Beulah Tronson, Mrs. Claude Markle, Miss Froenwall, Miss Glunt, Miss Alice McLaughlin, Jerome Cashin, Bob Brown and others.

Next Miss Tronson gave an exhibition of fancy diving, as did Miss Froenwall, and Miss McLaughlin.

Walter Gill showed the boys how to float.

As so much time was consumed in the events above named the swimming races were put over until Saturday afternoon when it is expected another large crowd will be on hand.

The last event of the afternoon was a canoe race between the Brenn brothers, Raymond and Viv., each canoe being powered by an outboard motor. When they crossed the finish line Chairman Brown of the Regatta Committee said the race was so close it would have to be called a draw. This race will also be run over at some future time.

The club house was prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns and colored streamers for the dance in the evening which was largely attended and enjoyed by all.

Post Boy, Ohio, got its name from a murder victim. It was named for a mail carrier slain in the early days.

Hi-Y Clubs to Hold Conference

The first annual conference of the Hi-Y Clubs of Dutchess, Ulster and Orange counties will be held at Camp Preumaker, the Y. M. C. A. Camp at Glenerie, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 13, 14 and 15.

Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Middletown, Port Jervis, Saugerties Kerhonkson, New Paltz, Marlborough, Highland and Kingston have been invited to send representatives.

"Billy" Burger, New York State Boys' Work Secretary will be in charge of the conference. Mr. Martin of Middletown will be in charge of the program. C. R. Hall of Kingston with "Chef" Raftery of Newburgh will be in charge of the "eats" and guarantee that there will be plenty for all.

This will be the first conference of this type ever tried by the Hi-Y boys. At a meeting of all the Clubs held last spring at Middletown it was decided that this conference was needed in order to map out a program for the fall and winter months.

The "Y" camp is an ideal spot for a meeting of this kind. The new bungalows, the large lodge, the swimming hole and other facilities of the camp make it an ideal spot to meet, eat and have some fun.

Registrations for the conference must be in the hands of the committee (Kingston Y. M. C. A.) on of before August 11.

To get the most for his money it is said that a Scotchman licks the grapefruit juice off his eye glasses.

Ladies' footwear this spring is to be "sandalized," a new word which looks as if it would be an easy one to misprint.

"Women's dresses," says a fashion note, "will be fuller." How can they be when they are already filled to overflowing?
